Espanola Diabetes
Educator Makes A
Global Impact: Hughes

A diabetes educator from Espanola is helping people work toward better fitness using a novel approach that has gained a global audience. Algoma-Manitoulin-Kapuskasing MP, Carol Hughes, told Parliament Wednesday, February 20th, Susan Clarke is a diabetes educator making a big difference in people's lives. She says Clarke noticed a gap for those who needed to exercise and she put together a program for clients, calling it From Soup to Tomatoes. Clarke knew any program had to be free, easily accessible, designed to address mobility issues, and above all, be led by a professional to ensure safety and avoid injuries. Hughes says the classes started 13

Canada – A Coast To Coast Comedy Show

My most recent survey of coast-to-coast Canadian calamities reveals that the rest of this country may in fact be just as screwed up as Ontario! If you've been following the machinations at Premier Doug Ford's White House ... sorry, Queen's Park you must be asking yourself: "But Bill, how can that be?" We start the comedy tour in British Columbia with the headline: "B.C. polar bear sees acting parts melt away." In the movie-making industry CGI (computer-generated imagery) has become so popular a 24-year-old stunt bear named Agee is now out of work. Whereas this roaring, flailing 800-pound man-eater once threatened fellow actors on set, an animator now draws her death-threatening gestures into the scene with a pen. So not only are polar bears starving and drowning due to the warming of the ice shields, now they can't even get a part in a Coke commercial!

Crossing into Alberta where the Calgary Herald ran the story: "Dead cow reportedly kicked slaughter house worker." Turns out this posthumous protest against the consumption of red meat happened in Berlin, Germany. In Alberta dead cows don't kick. It's against the law. They do however continue to fart after death. This still boggles the mind – methane from cows accounts for 27% of global greenhouse gas emissions which is 28 times more than carbon dioxide! Like the world needed one more reason not to eat at McDonalds.

In Labrador it was recently revealed that thousands of residents have for the last 80 years been illegally setting their clocks to Canada's Atlantic time and not Newfoundland's quirky "half-hour later" time. Prosecutors are reluctant to charge them because they'd all just show up early for their court appearances.

In an international war of stupid statues, Saskatchewan's Mac the Moose has just been dethroned as the world's tallest moose by Storelgen, a shiny, chrome-plated moose in Norway that was built 30 centimeters taller. Moose Jaw residents have already raised $11,000 to make Mac taller with either high heels, hockey skates, a Mountie hat or a Roughriders helmet.

My suggestion – don't go up, go big! Put such a huge and graphic set of wedding tackle on Mac, Storelgen can only shrink from inadequacy! Okay, so the Moose Jaw Visitors Centre will lose its family audience but sometimes you just gotta take a stand.

In Manitoba, people are still trying to come to grips with two quirky by-laws that banned singing on public transit and recognized the marriage of two dogs. These two events are not related. The newlyweds took a limo to the church, not a city bus.

In Ontario, the problem with political jokes is that so damn many of them got elected last year! Trying his damndest to match his Bully Bro in Washington who is now suspected of selling political favours on his first official day in office, Ford's first under-the-table act as premier was to ask the Ontario Provincial Police to provide him with a tricked-out RV camper and you know... keep quiet about it.

Noting President Trump's recent medical exam where he weighed in at 239 pounds, just seven pounds short of obesity, Premier Ford asks KFC to set up a kiosk in the corner of his Queen's Park office and ... keep quiet about it.

After Ford sees Trump mocking a reporter with a severe physical disability he immediately cuts funding for programs that treat autistic children. Noticing Trump's dislike for anybody who does not speak English, Ford cuts funding for Ontario's Francophone residents. Trump jumps off the Brooklyn Bridge, Ford heads to the CN Tower to ... (Sorry, daydream alert!)

Whereas most Canadian teachers are trying to eradicate bullying and violent behavior two elementary schools in Quebec have introduced "rough play" and "jostling" for their students. Kids are being encouraged to spend recess pushing, shoving, and wrestling in the snow so that when they return to class "they are more energetic and ready to learn." Not to mention limping and looking for their teeth. The winners will grow up to become bare knuckle cage fighters and the losers will hire personal injury lawyers.

Thieves in Moncton, New Brunswick made off with huge bags full of money from The Coin Cabinet, a store that deals in collectable currency. Turns out the robber's loot was all in $1 and $2 bills, paper currency that went out of circulation in Canada 32 years ago. RCMP are telling New Brunswick retailers to be on the lookout for $1 and $2 bills on which somebody has added two zeros with a magic marker. Jeffrey Arthur Feehan walked out of two Atlantic Superstores in Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, with packages of meat in his underwear thereby setting a record for scrotal swelling. Atlantic Superstores could not provide the evidence at trial because a clerk put the meat back on the shelf where it was picked up and purchased. Warning: if you bought a roast at an Atlantic Superstore on or about the end of January, cook well before serving and Purell the gravy. Andy Goudry was not an accomplice in the "rump roast in your pants" caper. He had an ironclad alibi. He had no pants! Goudry was out on the town celebrating his grandmother's 80th birthday when he somehow lost them. When nobody he asked on the streets of Halifax had seen his pants - not making this up - Andy offered a reward for their return. The reward offered was not meat but money... in $1 and $2 bills.

And finally in Newfoundland the Moustache Club's 2019 charity calendar features fat, bearded, long-haired men dressed as mermaids and posing half-naked on The Rock's rugged coastline. If you look at the photo of 'Red the Mermaid' at "Tipping the Scales For A Cause" you will never eat fish again! Even vegetarians will be turning to rump roast. Coast-to-coast Canada - a nation of accidental comedians.

Espanola's David Harrison Retires As Statistician

Espanola's David Harrison started reporting his first statistics back in 1957 for a local Espanola team. Since then, Harrison has been the long-time statistician for several hockey affiliations including the Northern Ontario Junior 'A' Hockey League and the Sudbury Wolves, to name just two.

The Junior 'A' League renamed the Most Gentlemanly Award the Dave Harrison Trophy two years ago to mark his decades with their league.

And, Harrison has been the statistician for the Sudbury Wolves since they entered the Ontario Hockey League in 1972. This past weekend he officially retired and the Wolves hosted a retirement night for him.

The retirement game took place Saturday, March 2nd in Sudbury

The Little Native Hockey League, has a record 237 clubs from Ontario registered for this year's tournament.

What started out with 17 teams on Manitoulin Island 48 years ago, has grown so much it has had to be held in Mississauga to accommodate the thousands who attend.

The tourney is set for March 11th to 14th at 17 rinks scattered throughout Mississauga.

Espanola Looking To Improve Efficiencies At The Sewer Treatment Plant

The Town of Espanola is partnering with the local Ontario Clean Water Agency to look into two options to improve efficiencies at the sewage treatment plant. Once someone flushes the toilet, they really don't concern themselves with where the waste goes, but agency spokesperson, Indra Maharjan, says there are several opportunities for the town to improve efficiency at the plant when it comes to disposal of solid waste. One option is to install geotubes that can dry the waste, called aerobic digestion, which can save haulage disposal fees to Sudbury.

Rather, he says, the solids would go to the local landfill or to be used in farming/soil operations. That option carries a cost of $1.4 million. The second option carries a much higher cost of $10 million and creates savings by diverting food waste away from the landfill and creating energy, in the form of gas, which can then be sold on the grid. Council gave Maharjan's team the go-ahead to apply for funding for both, but stressed they are under no obligation to accept either project. Maharjan is expected to report back to council by late summer.
