Seeing Is Believing

Photo: Dario Laurenti reacts to finding his daughter Emily, a casualty of the mock accident portrayed at Espanola High School last week.

By Chloe Kneer - Students were brought to the back parking lot of Espanola High School after lunch last week to see a mock accident demonstration aimed at raising awareness of the dangers of texting and/or drinking and driving. Two smashed up vehicles set the scene and several students had volunteered to play victims in the accident, donning gruesome make up and fake blood to simulate injuries that could be sustained in a horrific car crash. One student was outside the vehicles on the pavement,

Woman and Cat Plus New Boyfriend = Domestic Terrorism

Even a casual reader of a newspaper's advice column will notice the recurring theme of a household crisis involving the woman, her cat and the new boyfriend. The culprit is never the cat, he got there first and clearly marked the place as his own territory. The woman usually sets the table for trouble when she decides to strike out looking for companionship, intimacy and love. Duh! She already had the cat! As in all conflicts that result in a war the guy becomes the main transgressor. The new boyfriend either doesn't like cats or is allergic to them and that's where the battle begins.

Solutions offered up by the advice columnist and the readers vary from "definitely get rid of the guy" to shampooing the cat every two weeks to eliminate the dried saliva in the coat which causes the allergy. There is one other option. Years ago I was on the book tour with Guys - Setting Off The Jerk Detector and three incidents on my promotional day in Hamilton, Ontario still stand out in my mind.

First, my publicist arranged a book signing in a restaurant in Jackson Square called Walt's Beanery. They had me sitting at a small table in a corner of the restaurant with an ad sign over my head that read: "Try Our Beans And Let Us Hear From You!"

I know what you're thinking - it must have sounded like a whoopee cushion going off every minute or so. Well no, but I did ask for confirmation from the manager that I was sitting in a non-smoking section. I'll do a lot of crazy things to promote one of my books but having my hair set on fire by a natural gas explosion is not one of them.

The second thing that I remember was autographing two books for a gruff, middle-aged man in a hurry. "Sign for Big Ears and another for Big Ears Two."

As I signed the books I had to ask: "Please sir, tell me ... these are not your children?!" It turns out he had a couple of rabbits for pets and wanted to preserve the memory of them on the first page of my book.

And the third thing I remember was a woman telling me the story of how her house was turned into a war zone when her new boyfriend clashed with her cat. Her name was Christine, a lovely young lady who worked at Coles, my next stop on book tour day.

It seems Christine got caught in a love triangle between Sailor and her brand-new boyfriend Bob. Bob didn't care for Sailor while Sailor simply hated Bobs guts. Whereas Bob simply ignored Sailor, the cardinal sin of cat care, Sailor took to relieving himself in Bob's best shoes. That's when Sailor's name got changed to Stinker and at work, Bob's new nickname was "Lysol."

The war went on for a month or so with Bob pushing Sailor off his lap all the while becoming quite ripe in his loafers.

One of them had to go and when Sailor realized Bob's love for Christine was stronger than the smell of cat pee, he decided he would be the one to leave home. But - remember, he's a cat - only on his terms. I mean cats run away from home all the time but not quite like this guy did.

"It must have been over a period of like two weeks ... it happened so slowly, I didn't notice until he was gone," says Christine with one love affair falling apart just as the new one was growing strong.

First the rubber mouse on the wheel disappeared. Then two catnip mice went missing and the plastic ball with the bell inside was never again heard to jingle in the house on Grosvenor Street.

"As his toys disappeared, a few each week, I thought Bob was throwing them away and I remember thinking that was kind of cruel."

"By the time I noticed his small, stuffed cat toy had disappeared, Sailor was long gone," recalls Christine. "But still I thought Bob had something to do with it. I couldn't believe the cat had actually moved out of my house, one toy at a time."

The stuffed cat was Sailor's favourite, the one he loved to sink his teeth into and drool on, the one that reminded him of Bob. When Sailor made his move, he wasn't bluffing or bargaining for a better deal at home, like a key to Bob's walk-in closet where all his shoes were kept.

"One day he was sitting on the sidewalk in front of the house four doors down. I walked by and as I called his name, he just turned his back on me and walked up on the lady's porch," said Christine. Hell hath no fury like a feline rebuffed.

"The little bugger wouldn't even speak to me," she said.

Then the door at the top of the porch opened, Sailor scooted in and it was all over, a done deal. The cat had moved out of his house and into the neighbour's home after he had relocated all his toys.

And isn't that the way humans move too? One toy at a time? Yes, but the peeing in the other person's shoe is a novel way to say 'goodbye.'

fatally injured.

Once students had gathered around, a 9-1-1 call was placed and Espanola Police arrived. After that, members of the Espanola Volunteer Fire Department were dispatched to begin assessing damage and preparing the “jaws of life” to rescue two victims who were not able to be removed from one of the cars otherwise. EMS rounded out the complement of first responders and treated the mock up as if it were a real life accident. For more than an hour, emergency personnel assisted victims, conducted an investigation of how the accident happened, interacted with distraught parents and even arrested the perpetrator, a drunk driver. At the end, Bourcier Funeral Home’s hearse pulled up to retrieve the body of the fatally injured young girl and then Dan’s Towing removed the totalled vehicles. Just like in real life. The mock tragedy didn’t overlook a detail, including the parents’ emotional reaction to seeing their daughter lying dead on the pavement, thanks to the preparation and collaboration of the many organizations who took part. It was evident from students’ reactions that the scene had hit a nerve. Overseeing the project was Deputy Chief of EMS Glen Clifford. After the exercise concluded, students attended a presentation in the gymnasium that further conveyed to them the dangers of distracted or impaired driving.

It takes many donations to save a life, and every usable part of your donation goes to a patient in need. That's because every time you roll up a sleeve, your blood donation is separated into three components: red blood cells, platelets and plasma.

In The Loop

This week's article is an update on the results of the Freedom of Information request for the Cheque Registry and Credit Card activity which we filed over a year ago. The Town denied the request saying it was "frivolous and vexatious". We appealed to the Privacy Commissioner's Office. This began a long and difficult process. The Town presented the adjudicator with numerous reasons why they would not provide the information. We disputed these accusations and had to justify our request for the information. On May 16th the Privacy Commissioner notified the Town that "the adjudicator does not uphold the Town's decisions and orders it to issue access decisions with respect to the responsive records".

The adjudicator also stated:

- "Overall, I find that there are not reasonable grounds to conclude that the appellant's requests are part of a pattern of conduct that amounts to an abuse of the right of access."
- "Accordingly, I determine that there are not reasonable grounds to conclude that the requests were made in bad faith."
- "I find that the town has not provided sufficient evidence to support a finding that the appellant's requests were made for a purpose other than to obtain access."
- "I also find that the appellant and her group genuinely seek access to the records in this appeal."
- "Overall, I find that appellant's requests at issue in this appeal are not frivolous and vexatious...Accordingly, I will order the town to provide the appellant with a decision letter in response to her request."

The above statements were not published in the Town's media release on their website.

After 30+ days we still had not received the Town's decision letter regarding access to our requests and will be notifying the Privacy Commissioner's office.

Next week we will publish suggestions made by the adjudicator for both the Espanola Citizen Group and the Town.

In closing, the Community Services Committee Meeting of June 17th was cancelled again. They are supposed to meet on a monthly basis. They have not had one meeting in 2014.

Espanola Citizen Group

9. Use Proper Eye Protection and Wear Proper Clothing: Wear safety goggles and non-flammable clothing.
10. Keep Children Away From Fireworks

Espanola Police Report

A second Youth "Rave" Party hosted in Espanola in the month of May has left the Espanola Police Service investigating several serious criminal acts in the Town.

On Saturday May 3, 2014, a "Rave" party was held in Espanola, which saw an influx of youth from several outlying areas, including a number of attendees being bused in from the City of Sudbury. The following morning, the Espanola Police Service dealt with an increased number of thefts from vehicles, and suspicious person complaints involving young people around the vicinity of the hall hosting the party; many of the 14 reported thefts from vehicle complaints remain unsolved.

On Saturday May 31, 2014, a second "Rave" party was hosted in Espanola, again drawing youth from several outlying areas, including the City of Sudbury.

During the early morning hours on June 1, 2014, the Espanola Police Service responded to two complaints of Mischief, one involving a fence to a yard on Second Avenue, damaged by young people in the area, and one Mischief complaint involving a broken window at the Elk's Club. Further, the police received complaints of large groups of youth causing disturbances in the Second Avenue area; another four complaints of theft from vehicles and area yards; and more serious offences involving 2 night-time break and enters to area homes, where the home owners were home sleeping; a break and enter to a travel trailer parked on a residential property; and an Arson complaint where the interior of a truck parked on Mead Street was lit on fire, and had to be extinguished by the Espanola Fire Department. Currently, the Espanola Police Service are investigating these criminal acts, and are asking that if anyone has any information as to who is responsible for these offences, to call the Espanola Police Service or Crime Stoppers.

Avenue near Avery Drive, in regards to a grass fire. Upon arrival, Espanola Fire Services quickly extinguished the fire, before it could spread to nearby foliage, or threaten area homes.

While investigating the cause of the fire, a citizen provided information to police that he'd seen a local youth running from the area just prior to the fire. As a result of the information received, police interviewed the 14 year old, and were able to identify another 5 young males ranging in age between 13 and 18 years old, as also being in the area when the fire started.

Based on the information received from speaking to the youth, police could not determine that the fire was deliberately set, and may have been caused by one youth carelessly discarding a cigarette; however, it was determined that all 6 youth were trespassing on private property, and as a result, they were all charged under the Trespass to Property Act, and will receive summonses to appear in Provincial Offences Court to answer to their charges.

Keep Safety In Sight This Canada Day

Children under 14 account for 45% of fireworks-related eye injuries

The sights and sounds of a fireworks display are a traditional part of a Canada Day celebration. Unfortunately, fireworks can also lead to another annual tradition – a trip to the emergency room. According to Dr.'s Bell, Booth, Sirkka, Fabris Optometrists approximately 640 Canadians are treated annually for fireworks-related injuries, and of those, almost 160 are treated for injuries to the eye.

"Every year, as many as 40 Canadians will lose sight in one or both eyes due to fireworks,"

Dr. Darryl Fabris said. "We strongly encourage people to instruct their children on firework and sparkler safety and to be vigilant themselves when setting up displays."

Dr. Jeff Bell also offered these eye-opening facts about fireworks-related eye injuries:

- Children under 14 account for 45% of fireworks-related eye injuries
- Almost half of fireworks injuries happen to bystanders
- The fireworks that cause the most injuries are bottle rockets, firecrackers, and sparklers

Drs. Bell, Booth, Sirkka, Fabris Optometrists are located at 800 Centre Street, Espanola Mall and are members of Vision Source.

Founded in 1991, Vision Source® is North America's largest network of private practice optometrists. With more than 2,800 offices and 5,300 members in the United States and Canada.
