Area Cadets Help Spread The Message Of Remembrance

By Jillana Goodchild - A big thank you to Espanola and Massey businesses as they welcomed our local sea cadets Saturday, November 1 in their efforts to help the local legions give out the red flower pins commemorating soldiers who have fought and perished in the various wars for our country's freedom.

The poppy was first adopted as a national remembrance symbol in the early 1920s by the American Legion two years after Ms. Moina Michael created the first batch of 25 silk poppies at a YMCA Overseas War Secretaries conference in New York in 1918. Inspired by the war poem "In Flanders Fields" - "In Flanders fields where poppies blow, between the crosses,

"People - Drop Your Costumes And Put Your Hands Up!"

A few nights before Halloween a man in Nunica, Michigan attended a costume party dressed as a zombie. Stepping outside for a smoke, he decided he'd creep onto the road in front of the house in order to frighten motorists. And boy, did his plan work. He scared one driver so badly, the guy ran him over with his car. So in that sense 45-year-old Jeffrey Stiles of Muskegon and now in traction was quite successful. Jeffrey did not die because as any fan of The Walking Dead knows in order to kill a zombie you must detach the head from the body. Stiles is recovering from non-life threatening injuries and police are looking for a hit-and-run driver who is now really, really scared.

In tracking down the hit and run driver, Michigan police may have to enlist the help of the state's real life super hero Bee Sting. But they'll have to move fast because Bee Sting, who dresses up as a law-enforcing bumble bee accidentally discharged his shotgun at a trailer park where he was fighting crime. As a result, this four-winged hairy insect may be going to jail. No word from the police if, in misfiring his gun, Bumble Bee Man shot his own stinger off.

Super hero Phoenix Jones might have been able to help Michigan police get their man except he might be going to jail too. Phoenix dresses up in a yellow and black cape-style costume and - though nobody has actually asked him to - fights crime on the streets of Seattle, Washington. He has been accused of using pepper spray to break up a fight in front of a downtown bar that witnesses say never happened. That's an excellent indication of a dropping crime rate, where a super hero has to manufacture misdeeds in order to look busy. On second thought putting Phoenix Jones and Bee Sting on the same case probably would not have worked. With both showing up in clashing bright yellow costumes, they'd have likely got into a real cat fight. Which brings us to Hello Kitty. Two hours past midnight on Halloween, Hello Kitty was arrested in the small town of Gorham, Maine and charged with drunk driving.

I know what you're thinking - although dogs have been known to knock back a few beers now and then, cats almost always avoid cocktails.

Carrie Gipon, 37-years-old and dressed in a classic red and white Hello Kitty costume was spotted driving in the wrong lane and pulled over by police. She refused to take the breathalyzer after she kept getting her whiskers caught in the inhaler.

Gorham police took down Hello Kitty all by themselves, choosing not to enlist the help of Matthew Argintar, New Jersey's very own Batman. The all-black, masked crime fighter may not have been available anyway since he was recently arrested near a Home Depot for disorderly conduct and the illegal possession of handcuffs.

Oakland's Motor Mouth might have been able to bring justice to the Hello Kitty caper but coast-to-coast from California to Maine is a long way to fly. He would have had to refuel his cape at least six times.

Motor Mouth best sums up this new super hero phenomena when he says: "I want to help the cities of my area and make sure that people know my name and that I'm not just some random guy wearing a mask, some dude who read too many comic books or somebody that doesn't have a life."

Motor Mouth who wears a black bullet-proof vest learned all his skills as a super hero from a comic book called "Kickass" which tells me that he might have that vest on backwards.

Do you remember when men who wore masks were the bank robbers not guys named Captain Oyster and Phantom Zero hanging around banks to catch the robbers?!? Do you remember when Superman and Spider-Man put bad guys behind bars instead of serving time in the crowbar hotel themselves?!? Do you remember when everyone was kung-fu fighting and not handcuffing, pepper-spraying and firing shotguns off in the middle of the night?!?

Still, they're in our midst. They come in all sizes and costumes and almost every big city in America has one - today's real life super hero. They have names like Moon Dragon, Geist and Purple Reign. Crime fighters or just guys who like to wear tights?

There's even a team of them now operating in Canada. They wear cowboy hats and scarlet red tunics and they ride horses in circles to the sound of music and ... No! Wait! Those are the Royal Canadian Mounted Police! Those guys are for real!

Call me old-fashioned but I think super heroes belong on the pages of comic books and these real-life super heroes belong in protective custody. As far as guys in costume helping citizens in distress, we should have drawn the line at Boy Scouts helping little old ladies across the street and doing it for a chivalry badge and free Girl Guide cookies. People in costumes and crime are a real bad mix. As Superman's Lois Lane once said: "How many 'f's' in catastrophic?"

Pan Am/Parapan Am Games Torch Relay To Come Through Massey

By Chloe Kneer – As a high school student in the summer of 1987, my mother decided it would be a good experience for me to sign up as one of 37,000 volunteers for the Pan Am Games. (She was always trying to think of creative ways to keep me busy, much the way I do with my precocious thirteen year old son now.)

The games were being hosted in my hometown of Indianapolis, Indiana, after two other cities having to back out due to social unrest. It was a cool couple of weeks to say the least. Since the Pan American Sports Organization is affiliated with the International Olympic Committee, both games run every four years, with the Pan Am Games being the lead up to the Olympics. As such, we had great athletes in our midst, including diver Greg Louganis, as well as track and field champions Carl Lewis and Gail Devers. Indianapolis had long been considered the “amateur sports capital of the world” and hosting these games sealed that assertion.

When I donned the red polyester blazer I was issued (hot for July in Indy, to be sure) and boarded the unairconditioned school bus to go to our first assignment, little did I know what I was in for. Apparently, my level of volunteer status was high security compared with other things I could have been stuck doing. Our team was responsible for all medals given to winning athletes. Yes, we had to guard the medals during events and then do the presentations. Incidentally, I still have that red polyester blazer and also a lot of great memories from the experience. In the summer of 2015, the Pan Am/Parapan Am Games host city will be Toronto. There will be over fifty-two sporting events from archery to wrestling. There are forty-one Pan American Sports Organization (PASO) member nations and the games are the world's third largest international multi-sports games.

Preceding the Pan Am Games in July and the Parapan Am Games in August will be the torch relay. The torch will make its way from Mexico to Toronto, arriving on May 30. From there, over 130 communities and 3,000 torch bearers will relay the torch, landing back in Toronto for the July 10 cauldron lighting ceremony.

On the list of relay communities is Massey. “We (Massey) were selected by the Toronto 2015 Pan Am Committee to be on the torch route and Council passed a resolution confirming our involvement this past summer,” says Kelli Bracken, Programs Coordinator for the township's Parks and Recreation Department. “As Massey's Pan Am Committee Chairperson, it will be my duty to ensure the Pan Am Games are well represented in the community focusing on the heritage of the games and applying the spirit of the games - culture and sport.” The township is looking for volunteers to be torch bearers when the torch makes its way through the area on June 3. In order to qualify, a torch bearer must be 13 years old by May 30, 2015, a Canadian citizen or legal resident, and able to run or wheel his/her 200 metre segment on the assigned day. Anyone interested in applying must do so before December 1. For information, visit www.sables-spanish.ca or email Kelli at kbracken@sables-spanish.ca. Area Cadets Help Spread The Message Of Remembrance row on row...,” the idea came to her as a way to raise funds for ex-soldiers.

Today, poppy pins are primarily distributed in UK and Canada in the few weeks preceding Remembrance Day/Armistice Day, although the pins, taking various forms and made of different materials, are also an annual tradition in several other countries worldwide.

Espanola Poppy Chairman, Bob Laplante stressed that the campaign does not involve the “selling” of poppies but rather “poppy tagging,” as it is properly labelled, is a means to promote the remembrance symbol. Any donation made for a pin is voluntary and welcomed as the money raised by this effort primarily goes into a poppy trust fund to support veterans and their survivors. However, special permission has been obtained by the Espanola Legion to direct funds to additional worthy causes such as the Northeast Cancer Centre in Sudbury and the Espanola Regional Hospital Foundation in recent years.

Fourteen sea cadets (and one Blind River air cadet) volunteered their time on Saturday starting at 9:00 a.m. to participate in the poppy tagging campaign in collaboration with the Espanola and Massey Legions. Ann Behm, the Massey Poppy Chairman for over 15 years, with help from fellow legionnaires Grace Wagler and Wes MacDonald tallied up the donations brought in from Hero's morning at Massey's businesses and rewarded their cadets' work with a pizza lunch. Espanola and area sea cadets have participated in poppy tagging in the community since they first started parading out of the Espanola Legion and will once again partake in the honour guard at the Massey and Espanola Remembrance Day ceremonies on Tuesday, November 11. The Espanola ceremony will be held at the Espanola Legion at 11:00 a.m. and the Massey ceremony will be held at the Massey Arena also at 11:00 a.m. The parade forms at 10:30 a.m.

Wear your poppy proudly – lest we forget.

CNSC Open House in Spanish: Nuclear Safety

Canada's Nuclear Regulator
L'organisme de réglementation
nucléaire du Canada

The Canadian Nuclear Safety Commission (CNSC) will hold two open-house sessions in Spanish, Ontario. We will explain our role and early involvement in the Adaptive Phase Management (APM) approach – a proposed deep geological repository for used nuclear fuel.

Date: November 18, 2014, 1:00 – 3:30 p.m. and 6:00 – 8:00 p.m.
Place: Spanish Municipal Marina, 40 Garnier Road, Spanish, Ontario

About the open house

CNSC staff will be on hand to provide information and answer questions about how we regulate the nuclear sector. The CNSC is Canada's independent nuclear regulator, and does not promote nuclear energy or the Nuclear Waste Management Organization's (NWMO) APM approach. Our mandate is to ensure safety.

The CNSC is responsible for licensing geological repositories intended to provide for long-term management of radioactive wastes, including used nuclear fuel. The NWMO's APM approach is still in an early stage and the CNSC has not yet received a licence application. Should the project move forward, the NWMO would need a licence from the CNSC before any work commences. The CNSC would only issue a licence if it is safe to do so.

For more information, visit nuclearsafety.gc.ca, or contact us by email at info@cnscccsn.gc.ca or by telephone at 1-800-668-5284.

Portes ouvertes de la CCSN à Spanish sur la sûreté nucléaire

La Commission canadienne de sûreté nucléaire (CCSN) tiendra deux séances portes ouvertes à Spanish, en Ontario. Son personnel expliquera le rôle de l'organisation et comment participer dès le début à l'approche de gestion adaptative progressive (GAP) – un projet de dépôt dans des formations géologiques profondes pour le combustible nucléaire irradié.

Date : 18 novembre 2014, 13 h à 15 h 30 et 18 h à 20 h
Lieu : Marina municipale de Spanish, 40, chemin Garnier, Spanish (Ontario)

À propos des portes ouvertes

Le personnel de la CCSN sera sur place pour fournir de l'information et répondre aux questions sur la façon dont nous surveillons le secteur nucléaire. La CCSN est l'organisme de réglementation nucléaire indépendant du Canada et ne fait pas la promotion de l'énergie nucléaire ou de l'approche de GAP de la Société de gestion des déchets nucléaires (SGDN). Notre mandat consiste à assurer la sûreté.

La CCSN est chargée d'autoriser les dépôts géologiques prévus pour stocker des déchets radioactifs à long terme, y compris le combustible nucléaire irradié. L'approche de GAP de la SGDN en est encore à ses débuts, et la CCSN n'a pas encore reçu de demande de permis. Si le projet va de l'avant, la SGDN devra obtenir un permis de cette dernière avant que les travaux puissent commencer. La CCSN ne délivrera un permis que si le projet ne pose pas de danger.

Recipe

Cream of mushroom soup has always been one of my favourite things to have for lunch. When I was in elementary school my Grandpa would pick me up for lunch on Fridays while my mom and Grandma were grocery shopping. Our lunch was always the same; mushroom soup that wasn't quite blended enough which left lumps throughout the soup and a layer of pepper floating across the top of the bowl. Grandpa taught me to dip a whole soda cracker into the bowl of butter but I was not to tell Grandma. To this day I think of him every time I eat mushroom soup and I still dip my cracker into the butter when nobody is looking. For years I've been wanting to make homemade mushroom soup and finally did it last week. I found a simple recipe that really didn't take much time to make thanks to the convenience of presliced mushrooms. I am not a wine drinker and am hesitant to use it in cooking but if you let it simmer until it's reduced it really does add a nice flavour without making you aware it's in the soup. It was deliciously creamy and I loved having spoonfuls of large, chewy mushrooms with every bite. Of course it wasn't complete without a good sprinkle of pepper and a handful of crackers.

Homemade Cream of Mushroom Soup

- 1/4 cup butter
- 3 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 1/2 pounds mushrooms, thinly sliced
- 1 onion, diced
- Kosher salt and freshly ground black pepper, to taste

Melt butter in a large pot over medium heat. Add garlic and mushrooms, and cook, stirring occasionally, until tender and browned, about 5-6 minutes; season with salt and pepper, to taste. Stir in onion and cook, stirring frequently, until translucent, about 2-3 minutes. Stir in wine and bring to a boil; reduce heat and simmer until slightly reduced, about 5 minutes. Stir in chicken broth, cream and thyme. In a small bowl, whisk together cornstarch and 1/4 cup water. Stir mixture into the soup until slightly thickened, about 1-2 minutes; season with salt and pepper, to taste. If the soup is too thin, add more cornstarch and water as needed until desired consistency is reached.

Giant Tiger Winner Helps Espanola High School

Giant Tiger Stores ran a national online contest at back-to-school time where shoppers could make a video sharing their shopping experiences (look for the "Haul Video" on YouTube). Up for grabs was $1,000 ($500 in gift cards and $500 cash) to go to the school of the winner's choice and $500 in gift cards for the winner. The grand prize winner of the video contest is Massey resident Katherine Wright, who chose to donate the winnings to Espanola High School. "I have a daughter at E.H.S.," says Katherine. "I got a lot of help from her and her friends in putting the video together." Katherine and her daughter, Halie, with the help of a friend who has all of the video equipment, took actual footage of themselves doing their back-to-school shopping at Giant Tiger Espanola. The video captured the eyes of those at Giant Tiger's head office and the rest is history.

Local Giant Tiger owner Jeanno Lalande along with Katherine and Halie presented the gift cards and cheque to Espanola High School Vice Principal Sheila Giroux (photo above). "We will let Halie decide how the money is to be spent," said Giroux.
