The Big Gulp

A few years back, I wrote about Mark Hatterer of York, Penn., who bravely went where few men have gone before: headfirst into a stinking septic tank. On purpose. But for a very good reason – to save the life of a dog.

Mark saved Scottie, a Terrier who, while sniffing the sweet fumes of an open cesspool, got dizzy and fell in, thrusting Mark reluctantly into the role of a hero. A dirty, filthy, dripping hero, but a saviour nonetheless.

Mark successfully applied CPR to the unconscious Scottie, bringing him back with the breath of life. In the absence of witnesses, it's still unclear who threw up first. This was the only case I'd ever heard of in which a human rescue technique was successfully applied to a dog – until I met Maureen Fredrickson at her farm in Fredonia, NY.

An absolute animal lover, Maureen has created a kind of healing homestead, where emotionally damaged people achieve recovery by developing 'gentle touch' and trusting body language while interacting with her menagerie of horses, donkeys, chickens and turkeys in her huge, arena-like barn. Animal Systems operates weekend group seminars and one-on-one therapy sessions for people not dealing well with the nightmares of their past. The dogs and birds lived in the house.

One day, Maureen arrived home with a prized addition to her lineup of therapists: a young and very sociable Cockatiel. The small crested parrot from Australia, with a yellow head and grey body, was everything Maureen looked for in a teaching assistant – gentleness and predictability. Moreover, the bird liked people more than other birds.

Watching him flop around on the kitchen counter that first day, taking measure of his new home, she wondered what to name him. Just then, her roommate Greg came into the kitchen with the dogs, having just finished their daily walk. New bird, old dogs – there was suddenly an awful lot of staring going on.

Even under the best conditions, a tall, long-snouted Irish Wolfhound can be quite intimidating. To a small bird in an unfamiliar environment, big, gangly Gaibhne (pronounced "Go-Nee") must have looked like the Loch Ness Monster – which could be the reason the young Cockatiel lost his balance and fell awkwardly to the floor.

Maureen's dogs are working dogs and after a long day at the healing barn, the house is theirs for rest and relaxation. So, there aren't a lot of rules in the house, except one: anything that hits the floor is theirs.

Before the bird could pick himself up from an unceremonious landing, Gaibhne was on him like he was a table scrap from a Thanksgiving buffet. In a flash, two people frozen in fright, watched what the chain of 7-Eleven stores might call The Big Gulp. Before Maureen or Greg could move, the dog had swallowed the Cockatiel whole.

Maureen lunged for the Wolfhound and pried open its jaws, only to see the bird's trembling tail feathers sticking out of the dog's throat. Her only option would be to grab the tail and yank hard, but she was pretty sure she'd only end up with a handful of feathers.

Before she had to make that decision, though, Greg straddled the dog from behind. He had been in the restaurant business and the chart on the wall came back to him:

1. Wrap your arms around the victim's waist.
2. Make a fist against the victim's upper abdomen, below the rib cage and above the navel.
3. Grasp your fist with your other hand and press into the victim's abdomen with a quick, upward thrust.

After hesitating about where a dog might keep its navel, Greg did the hug and jerk on Gaibhne and in doing so, performed a successful Heimlich maneuver. The bird shot out of the dog's mouth and across the room like a cruise missile – only damp and backwards. The look of surprise on both the dog and the bird was something Marlin Perkins never captured in 25 years of filming Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom.

It may not have been the first ever successful Heimlich maneuver on a dog, but it had to be the only time in history an Irish Wolfhound ever barfed up a parrot. H. J. Heimlich would be proud, if not a little confused.

Both dog and bird lived wearily ever after. Maureen said the Cockatiel never felt comfortable around big dogs after that. And the dog never trusted small birds. Eventually he did go on to eating other snacks.

However, the collision of two unrelated links on the food chain had solved one problem: the bird's name. It was a no-brainer after what he'd been through. Maureen named him Jonah.

Espanola Council Accepts Espanola Parks And Recreation Strategic Master Plan

Espanola Council has received the final report that will focus on recreational development in town for the next ten years.

The Parks and Recreation Strategic Master Plan provides a comprehensive and sustainable multi-year framework of short (1-3 years), medium (4-6 years) and longer-term (7+ years) priorities for the development and enhancement of sport and recreation as well as community quality of life in the Town of Espanola.

Many of the recommendations contained in this Master Plan can be expected to extend well beyond the time horizon of 10 years – particularly as it relates to decisions regarding capital investment and plans.

The plan is the first of its kind for the Town of Espanola.

Triggers which necessitate changes in facilities and services are based on a balance of factors. With population and demographics changes, as well as changes in the delivery of programs and services, it has become imperative to evaluate the Town's recreation delivery system – that is, identify the issues, opportunities and challenges.

The plan was formed after consultation with the public, stakeholders, Town staff and Council as well as an analysis of Town's assets, facility revenues and expenditures, facility conditions and standards of provision based on population and participation data during the Spring and Summer of this year. The Parks and Recreation Strategic Master Plan is a municipal guidance document designed to further effective planning, budgeting and implementation of the stated goals, objectives and corresponding actions outlined herein to outlined within the document.

The long-term vision statement for recreation in Espanola is as follows: "An active and vibrant community that maximizes its existing built/natural assets to provide exceptional leisure opportunities and quality services for residents and visitors".

The plan also identifies key issues and opportunities and is positioned on the following principles: 1. Investment in recreation for resident retention and attraction (i.e. youth and families); 2. Addressing the needs of an aging population through recreation planning; 3. Enhancing the utilization of existing assets through investment, creative programming and partnerships; 4. Adopting an asset management approach to investment in infrastructure that reflects prudent capital investment – this includes consideration for replacing, decommissioning and/or repurposing assets where warranted; 5. Ongoing monitoring of community demand for events, new sports and activities and where possible, accommodating such demand through the multi-use of assets (that is, through the creation of 'recreation destinations'). 6. The provision of quality services in a responsive manner as well as the development and implementation of policies and protocols that enhance the user experience with facilities; and, 7. A balancing approach to fee setting that encourages broad community participation in recreation and which recognizes the value of assets.

It also contains specifics, such as the formation of a recreation committee made up of members of the public, repurposing some of the land at the Red McCarthy Ballfields for other uses, such as a BMX park, park improvements at Clear Lake Beach and along the Al Secord Trail and much more, 43 recommendations in all.

Town CAO Cynthia Townsend says the 'living' document will now be implemented through the Community Services Committee, which is made up of half the council members. They will review and decide what aspects they want to implement in the near future.

Espanola Businesses Hosting Its First Ever Ladies Night – Proceeds For Hospital

"The Espanola Nursing Home Therapeutic Garden is half way there already." Hoddy says there will be plenty of giveaways and some great pricing just in time for the upcoming holiday season.

To add a Twist to Our Ladies Night, he wanted to offer something as an addition to just the event at Jean Country.

The second entry option for $15 will still get you in to the store, still the $5 donation to the Garden Fundraiser, BUT, would include 50% off Dinner at Cortina Restaurant before going shopping across the street.

"Why go home after work

Ladies when you can make the whole evening all about you?" It includes beverage, appetizer, entrée, dessert.

"The ladies can enjoy a delicious meal before they head across the street for the festivities at the Lady's Night."

As well, every ticket holder will get a gift valued at $20 with purchase at Jean Country.

"Come on out, buy yourself something or get that extra special gift for that special someone and help out a great cause at the same time ... sounds like a great Ladies Night to me, and I'm looking forward to seeing everyone there," adds Hoddy.

Espanola Council Has Sworn In A New Councilor

She will fill a vacancy left by Stewart Mickleham who was first elected in 2010.

Family was in attendance to see her take the Oath of Office.

The next municipal election is not until October 2018.

Following her swearing in, she joined council at the table and was welcomed by the various members.

Espanola Festivals A Huge Success

Hundreds took in the various events and the venues were filled to capacity at the annual Espanola Pumpkin and Fibre Arts Festival held October 18th to 22nd..

The weekend included a sold out fashion show Saturday night, displays of all kinds of fibre arts, papermaking and a pumpkin weigh-in contest with a winner: Perry Kirkbride of Sudbury at 250 pounds. Second went to Rick Hervieu of Massey at 165 pounds and Justin Caldwell of Massey at 75 pounds.

The grand opening of the festival took place Friday evening from 7:00 PM to 9:00 PM with a reception and unveiling of the Kopanang Universe Canticle textile exhibit from South Africa at the Espanola Mall. The Kopanang Universe Canticle is a traveling exhibit of 31 stunning wall hangings created by women in the Kopanang Community in South Africa. They not only unfold the universe evolution story, but also reveal and strengthens the spirit of the Kopanang community.

Drew Matott of the international Paper Peace Project was well received by students and community alike. Making paper

The Carver Kings of HGTV fame also designed a totem pole for permanent display at Clear Lake. The Colours of Hope 5 K had 75 participants who raised $7,500 for cancer research on Sunday. Photos by Rosalind Russell

Recipe

Thank you to our Publisher's sister for the following recipe. Meat loaf is classic, comfort food, perfect for popping in the oven during the upcoming colder months.

Best Ever Meat Loaf

- 1 ½ lbs of lean ground beef
- 2 eggs
- 2/3 cup milk
- 3 slices of bread, crumbled
- 1 small onion, diced
- ½ cup raw carrot, shredded
- 1 cup grated cheddar cheese
- 2 tsp salt
- ¼ tsp pepper

Glaze

- ¼ cup brown sugar
- ¼ cup ketchup
- 1 tbsp prepared mustard

Beat eggs slightly. Add milk, salt, pepper and bread. Mix well. Add onions, carrots, cheese and beef. Mix well and put into a loaf pan. Combine glaze ingredients and spread over the loaf. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Pour off any excess fat when finished cooking and let loaf sit for 5 minutes before serving.
