You Have To Give And Take – A Motto For 70 Years Of Wedded Bliss

By Rosalind Russell - Some of us are fortunate in life in being able to find that soul mate and spend many, many decades with them. God blesses others with longevity and there is one couple who have been truly blessed with wedding bliss.

Irwin and Orpha (Sloss) Duxbury celebrated their 70th, that's right, 70th wedding anniversary on Monday, September 11th, 2017.

Originally from Manitoulin Island, the two moved into Queensway Place Assisted Living complex this past June. Betty Bowerman shared their story with Around&About.

"We at Espanola Queensway Place had the privilege of hosting an afternoon tea in honour of Irwin and Orpha's

Cambrian College Receives Big Boost For Entrepreneur Program

Fifteen young adults are taking part in a new program to help them develop their own business ideas and get them off the ground.

Cambrian College's Espanola campus was the host site for a federal MP who had a sizable cheque in hand for a new program.

Sudbury MP Paul Lefebvre announced the $358,000 investment yesterday morning on behalf of Employment, Workforce and Development Minister Patty Hajdu.

"This new project that will give youth in northeastern Ontario invaluable entrepreneurial skills training and facilitate business networking and mentorships," says Lefebvre. "Developing Canada's youth is a priority. Cambrian College's project is a concrete example of what we can achieve for youth by working in partnership with organizations across the country. Projects like this one can help put regular pay cheques into the reach of those who need it. But more than that, they give young Canadians the chance to change their future."

The money, which will be shared between the college's two campuses: Espanola and Little Current, is part of the Youth Entrepreneurship Skills Development Program.

College President Bill Best thanked Lefebvre for investing in local area youth and wishes the students success.

"This is an excellent example of Canadians helping Canadians," said Best. "Even if we have one success out of the program, it is a resounding success."

"We are rural here, not living where there are hundreds of thousands of people, so one success can make a huge difference to a community. I wish all the students success with the program."

Up to 15 students will be taking part in the program, which will be hosted at both locations.

Program Facilitator Celina Mantler adds the students will develop a business plan and will also meet with local community entrepreneurs during the course to help develop their ideas.

Skills Link supports projects that help young people who face more barriers to employment than others to develop entrepreneurial skills and gain valuable business experience. The projects aim to assist young people who may not have completed high school, single parents, Indigenous youth, young persons with disabilities, youth living in rural or remote areas or newcomers.

Algoma-Manitoulin-Kapuskasing MP Carol Hughes was also in attendance to extend congratulations to all while emphasizing the importance of investing in youth educational initiatives.

Photo: Sudbury MP Paul Lefebvre was in Espanola on Tuesday, September 12th to hand over a cheque for $358,330 for the Youth Entrepreneurship Skill Development Program. The program is being offered in both of Cambrian College's satellite campuses: Espanola and Little Current. On hand for the presentation (l-r): Algoma-Manitoulin-Kapuskasing MP, Carol Hughes; Cambrian College President, Bill Best; Interim Director of Business Development for Cambrian College, Sue Ferguson, who welcomed the visitors to the Espanola campus; Sudbury MP Paul Lefebvre and Program Facilitator Celina Mantler.

Travel Signs Are Signs Of Trouble

Did you ever think reading a travel brochure would be more entertaining than taking the tour itself? This spotted on the pamphlet of a car rental agency in Japan: "When passenger of foot heave in sight, tootle the horn. Trumpet him melodiously at first, but if he still obstacles your passage, then tootle him with vigor."

You must be very careful travelling to foreign countries where one wrong slip of the tongue could cost you your life. Like most North American tourists, you're probably not fluent in the language of the places you're planning to visit. That's not the problem. What could prove to be your demise is not their language but their version of yours. In tripping over themselves and their tongues to accommodate us by using the English language, some things often go awry. For instance, do not drink the water at the hotel in Acapulco, Mexico, where the sign reads: "The manager has personally passed all the water served here." Hey! Who does this guy think he is? An astronaut? I'd be a tad leery of doing a quick mid-trip wash at the laundromat in Rome that advertises: "Ladies, leave your clothes here and spend the afternoon having a good time." Also avoid the doctor down the street: "Specialist in women and other diseases."

That doctor should open an office in Prague where the tourist board suggests: "Take one of our horse-drawn city tours – we guarantee no miscarriages." A much better offer than the donkey rides in Thailand where they ask: "Would you like to ride on your own ass?"

For an uplifting religious experience, visit the dentist in Hong Kong who claims "Teeth extracted by the latest Methodists." Gums are probably massaged by Lutherans.

Homesick? Visit the airline ticket office in Copenhagen where: "We take your bags and send them in all directions." I think they lifted that policy from Air Canada.

You might want to remove Russia from your itinerary because on the door of a Moscow hotel room they warn you: "If this is your first visit to Russia, you are welcome to it." Yikes! But if you go, do visit the cemetery in Moscow where: "Famous Russian and Soviet composers, artists and writers are buried daily except Thursdays." Putin must take Thursdays off.

That's as bad as the ringing endorsement on the menu of the Swiss restaurant: "Our wines leave you nothing to hope for." Don't wait to be seated at the restaurant of the Polish hotel where the menu explains: "Salads a firm own make: limpid red beet soup and cheesy dumplings in the form of a finger; roasted duck let loose, beef radishes beaten up in the country people's fashion." Not only do I hate beet soup, I'd be out of there as soon as that duck let loose.

Can't be as bad as the bakery in Tokyo where: "All of contents are no additional. It's burned to a crisp with all our heart."

Those Brits who refer to romantic getaways as "dirty weekends" must be frequenting the hotel in Paris where the sign on the elevator reads: "Please leave your values at the front desk." Immorality also flourishes at the Japanese hotel where: "You are invited to take advantage of the chamber maid." But be careful trying anything at the Yugoslavian hotel where: "The flattening of underwear with pleasure is a job of the chambermaid." She'll crush you as soon as crease your briefs.

If you get really stressed out on your Asian adventure, a good place to vent would be the Hong Kong tailor shop where: "Ladies may have a fit upstairs." I suppose another type of stress-reliever is available at the dry cleaners in Bangkok where you: "Drop your trousers here for best results."

And don't even think about following the advice of the Zurich hotel: "Because of the impropriety of entertaining guests of the opposite sex in the bedroom, it is suggested that the lobby be used for this purpose."

At the tailor shop in Rhodes, Greece, sooner is better than later when you: "Order your summer suit. Because is big rush we will execute customers in strict rotation." Watching too much news from the Mideast, that tailor.

Like most zoos, the one in Budapest has a strict rule about feeding animals. Don't. And: "If you have any suitable food, give it to the guard on duty." That guy is so sick of sandwich crusts!

If you are wearing pant suits while travelling, you might want to pass up the temple in Bangkok where: "It is forbidden to enter a women even a foreigner, if dressed as a man." If the ticket price requires dropping your pants to prove it, I say go to the zoo instead.

Shopping in Japan can be a real adventure. They sell soup called "The Goo," cosmetics branded "Cookie Face," toilet paper identified as "My Fanny Print" and an automobile antifreeze called "Hot Piss." Watch your step at the treatment plant near Tokyo: "Dirty Water Punishment Place." And make room in the back of the Jeep at the Kenyan safari park where: "Elephants please stay in car."

Travelling abroad and tiptoeing through the garden of garbled English could leave you exhausted, confused and yes, chasing your own tail or as the sign in a Japanese washroom reads: "Go back toward your behind." I'm going there now.

Espanola Council Approves Camp Quality Celebration

Espanola council unanimously approved two bylaw exceptions at its regular meeting of council on Tuesday, September 12th.

Local Camp Quality organizers had asked for an exception to the local bylaws in regards to fireworks and noise.

Camp Quality is hosting a reunion in Espanola on Saturday, September 23rd.

The Espanola Volunteer Firefighters have agreed to take care of the fireworks on the track and field adjacent to the Espanola Regional Recreation Complex as part of the celebration.

Councillor Ron Duplessis noted that the group has been an active and positive part of Espanola and area for many years and encouraged his fellow councillors to support the exceptions.

"They have had fireworks other years and residents have not expressed concerns," said Duplessis. "In fact, they enjoy them themselves."

Camp Quality Canada is part of an international family of organizations originally founded in Australia in 1983 by Vera Entwistle. Vera's mission was to provide a program to support children with cancer and their families, an area not being addressed by any other organization. Different groups with the Camp Quality name now run programs in Australia, Canada, New Zealand, USA, UK and Hong Kong, the largest of which is still the original Australian Camp Quality.

Camp Quality was brought to Canada in 1988. It was initiated by a group of dedicated volunteers in southern Ontario with the first camp being held in Priceville, Ontario. Since then, they expanded to seven camp locations across Canada, including one near Sudbury. While Vera was trying to come up with a name for her new camp, a doctor said to her, "No one can do anything about the quantity of life, but we all can do something about the quality." This continues to represent the spirit of the camp – providing quality time, with the best people, through a strong and established program.

After 25 years in Canada, Camp Quality has adopted a new logo and tag line to take them forward, and a wonderful way to mark the reunion. This new look incorporates their Canadian heritage, the amazing and nurturing relationship of campers and companions, and their work to ensure an uplifting experience for all! Council unanimously approved the motions.

Third Annual Espanola ATV Run Raises Over $5,000

The Third Annual Espanola Fire Association ATV Poker Run where local firefighters, their families, friends and supporters come together to raise funds for the cause was a rip-roaring, muddy, happy affair.

One of the co-organizers, Trevor McVey says they had 160 participants and raised over $6,000 for Muscular Dystrophy Canada.

McVey says that is over double what they collected last year.

The participants ATV'd from

Espanola to House Lake and back on Saturday, and capped off the day with a dinner at the Elks hall. McVey says a huge thank you has to go out to the many volunteers who helped to run the event and the Elks for donating the venue. And, a huge shout-out to the Ladies of the Royal Purple who also made a $500 donation to the event.

Of note, the total money raised over three years now exceeds $12,000.

You Have To Give And Take – A Motto For 70 Years Of Wedded Bliss

70th wedding anniversary ... 70 years, wow!" recalls Bowerman. "They met at a dance in Mindemoya in 1946 and, after a year of dating, were married in a beautiful wedding in Spring Bay near Orpha's home ... a reception and dance followed in the town hall.

"This couple are still very spry and agile; no walkers or canes," chuckles Bowerman. "They held an earlier celebration for family and friends at the Espanola Legion a couple of weeks ago with an evening of dancing and fellowship.

"I think dancing is their favourite past-time next to playing card games. Orpha does like to do jigsaw puzzles while Irwin is watching his baseball games – the Blue Jays, of course!"

The newlyweds made their home in Tehkummah on Manitoulin Island where Irwin was born and raised.

"Irwin had some carpentry skills, which came in handy both in earning a living and over the years building new homes to fit their growing family, one son and four daughters," says Bowerman. "Today, they are also blessed with seven grandchildren and eight great grand-children. Some live close by while others live as far away as California, USA"

Irwin worked for Ontario

Hydro for three years building power lines, sometimes near Kagawong, other times in the Killarney area. Bowerman says he always felt it was important to be home with his family, at least on weekends. This meant Orpha got to spend a lot of quality time with their children.

"Of course, there was always lot of house work plus gardening to do. She did enjoy some of her time knitting and crocheting."

Irwin then went to work for the Ministry of Transportation.

"He would do snowplowing in the winter and road maintenance in the summer. He retired in 1989 in Tehkummah after 30 years of road work.

"Of course, a women's work seems to never end. That is, until the two moved into Queensway Place. In here, we go to the dining room for our meals, some wonderful staff clean our rooms and does our laundry - unless we want to do it ourselves for the exercise – this is where women truly get to retire!"

"When I asked them what their secret of their marriage success was, they replied, "you have to give and take."

They also expressed their gratitude to all who helped them celebrate this great milestone. Congratulations!

Recipe

We've all been there; you go outside and discover that somehow a monstrous zucchini has appeared overnight in your vegetable garden or a well-meaning friend gives you a zucchini the size of a football. I have to admit, those zucchinis have ended up in my compost bin over the years, but not anymore! I have collected several recipes for grated zucchini that I love, and now I grate up those large zucchinis and freeze it in bags to use throughout the fall and winter. The following recipe is one of them, and is a great combination of zucchini, pineapple and coconut with a silky cream cheese frosting. It is moist and addictive.

Pineapple Zucchini Cake

- 1½ cups all-purpose flour
- 1¼ cup granulated sugar
- ½ cup sweetened flaked coconut
- 2 teaspoons baking soda
- 2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon salt
- freshly grated nutmeg to taste, optional
- 1 pinch ginger, optional
- 3 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 2 large eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 cups grated unpeeled zucchini (remove seeds if the zucchini is large)
- 1 (20-ounce) can crushed pineapple in juice, drained (reserve juice in case you need it for the cake batter or frosting)

Cream Cheese Frosting:

- 8 ounces cream cheese
- 2 tablespoons butter, softened
- 2 cups powdered sugar
- 2 teaspoons vanilla extract
- splash of milk or pineapple juice, if necessary

Preheat the oven to 350°F. Spray a 9x13-inch baking pan with non-stick cooking spray. In a large bowl, combine the flour, sugar, coconut, baking soda, cinnamon, salt, nutmeg and ginger. In a small bowl, beat together the oil, eggs and vanilla. Add the mixture to the flour mixture, as well as the zucchini and pineapple. Stir until it all comes together. It might seem too dry to start, but continue to stir. If the batter is still dry, add a little bit of the pineapple juice to loosen it up. Pour the batter into the prepared pan. Bake until a tester inserted in the center comes out clean, 30-35 minutes. Cool completely. To make the frosting, beat the cream cheese and the butter together until light and fluffy. Add in the powdered sugar, beat to combine, then beat in the vanilla. Spread the frosting over the cooled cake. Store the cake covered in the refrigerator.
