"I Got Holes In My Head And They Won't Go!"

There were more people falling down holes last week than moles. In China 149 miners survived that country's latest coal mine disaster but 32 did not.

Near Whiteville, West Virginia Cody Beverly lead two friends down into the abandoned Elk Run coal mine with the intention of stealing copper. They were trapped without food, water or light for four days. Rescue workers managed to pull the three dirty and desperate trio to safety. After thanking his saviours and telling the press it was a "life-changing experience for me," the 21-year-old Beverly gave the finger to a photographer taking his picture. Trapped in a deep black hole can make a man humble and grateful. Suggested headline: Thief Digs Himself a Deep Hole When Confronted By Copper!

In San Lorenzo, California a 29-year-old man stripped naked on the roof of a Chinese restaurant and slid down the vent into the kitchen. Using the steel chute like a waterslide, he entered Chef Kwong with the intention of robbing the place of appliances. But the vent took a sharp turn over the kitchen stove and he became trapped and struggled for two days in gunk and grease to get out. It wasn't until the owner of the business next door heard the man's moaning that he was rescued by firefighters who had to cut through sheet metal to release him. Looking like a well-done Peking duck, the guy lived but not to tell his story. So far he's not cooperating with police. Trapped in a dark, greasy duct for days can render a man speechless. (At least until he's talked to a lawyer.) Suggested title: Naked Man Jumps into Grease Pit, Lard Ass First.

And then there's Julia Roberts. Last week the actress was not so much trapped down a dark hole as she was entrapped by a 'holey' typo.

In a puff piece distributed to American newspapers by the Associated Press, the editor of the Post-Journal in Jamestown, New York made a type-setting error that nobody caught until it went Internet viral. The headline on the entertainment article above Julia's confident face read: "Julia Roberts Finds Life and Her Holes Get Better With Age."

I mean, you gotta hope it was a typo. I can't speak for her ears but those nostrils look like they've seen better days!

No, this is Julia Roberts and unless she's had some serious cosmetic work done on her belly button, that 'hole' thing is definitely a typo.

And although I'm taking the high ground on this one, Lestor Lawrence, the guy who smuggled $190,000 worth of gold out of the Royal Canadian mint in his rectum – he could not make that same claim!

Let's remember this is Julia Roberts not Gwyneth Paltrow who probably would boast about her holes getting better with age and attributing the improvement to her Tushy Clip-On-Bidet at only $69 plus shipping on Goop.

Of course it was an innocent mistake in a frantic business with over-worked people groggy right up until deadline. Still, it was ridiculous! "Julia Roberts Finds Life And Her Holes Get Better With Age." A fourth-grader can clearly see that the headline should have read: "Julia Roberts Finds Life And Her Rolls Get Better With Age."

Typos! The bluebirds of happiness of the newspaper industry. We love 'em. We repeat 'em. I collect 'em. Some typos can bring great relief. Like the news item in Silicon Valley's Mountain View paper: "Police received a report of a newborn infant found in a trash can. Upon investigation, officers discovered it was only a burrito." Yeah, but big burrito! Okay?

There are some typos that leave you speechless: "One-Armed Man Applauds The Kindness Of Strangers." Or "Homicide Victims Rarely Talk To Police." (Yeah, but when they do, people listen!)

Some typos are irrefutable if a bit odd: "Statistics Show Teen Pregnancies Drop Significantly After The Age of 25."

Ghoulis? "Students Cook And Serve Grandparents." Yes, until that little preposition 'For' gets out in front of the grandparents. Some typos just defy logic. "Worker Suffers Leg Pain After Crane Drops 800 Pound Ball On His Head." Sore leg but one helluva hard head.

A few typos if not corrected could change history. "President Woodrow Wilson Spent An Evening At The Theatre Entering The Ladies." (Mrs. Wilson must have really been passed off!)

Sometimes there's a very good reason for a newspaper mix-up. From the Spokesman-Review/Spokane, Washington: "An April 5th story stated Mary Fraijo did not return a reporter's calls seeking comment. Fraijo died last December." See? Not avoiding. Just chillin'.

And that 'hole' episode with Julia Roberts was not the first time the Jamestown Post-Journal got a headline hilariously wrong. Years ago when I taught a writing course at the nearby Chautauqua Institute, I used to read that paper daily. No cartoon or humour column ever made me laugh out loud like this one, 'the mother of all corrections': "The Band Raging Saints base their music on Born Again Christian principles and the King James version of the Bible. They are not 'unrepentant head-bangers' as was reported in our Nightlife column last Saturday. The Jamestown Post-Journal regrets the error." Don't we all!

Sable-Spanish Rivers 4-H Club Members Had A Fabulous Year

Dianne Emery says 4-H members and leaders gathered at S. Geiger Public School to celebrate their accomplishments in 2018 on Thursday, December 13th.

The Plowman's Association Award for the Top Senior member was presented to Faith Emiry.

The club also selected three outstanding members to receive free memberships to 4-H for 2019: Leah Emiry, Chloe Day and Rachel Joyce.

Emiry adds the evening also featured the club's Go for the Gold team who competed at the Provincial Go for the Gold competition in November, placing fourth in the province. Members also received awards for participation and leadership. Eight members were selected to receive Head, Heart, Hands, and Health awards. They were Anabelle Ropp, Chessa Dorion, Max Meier, Morgan Wagler, Taryn Jerome, Kyara Vuorensyrja, Elizabeth Roy, and Alyssa Labelle.

The club also honoured members who will be graduating from secondary school in 2019, namely Faith Emiry, Heidi Meier, Makenna Constantin, Grayem Vuorensyrja, and Emily Camillo. Faith, Heidi, and Makenna also received recognition for being Youth Leaders in 2018 along with Montana Brandow. They were presented with 4-H backpacks through the Kubota Canada 4-H Youth Leader recognition program.

Emiry says the Sables-Spanish Rivers 4-H club extends a huge thank you to community members and organizations who helped with clubs and special events.

Thanks to that support, the club was able to offer 12 projects covering topics such as cooking with chocolate, crafts, dairy calf club, leadership, ukulele, and sports.

There are over 70 members ranging in age from 6 - 20 years old. Six to eight year olds are Cloverbuds and 9 - 21 year olds can join 4-H.

Another exciting year of 4-H will begin in January with membership night on Thursday, January 10th. 7:00 to 8:00 pm at S. Geiger Public School.

to: the directorate of staffing policies and programs at the Department Of National Defence senior team working with Rosalind's daughter, Natalie Donohue, who donated $310 to go towards ongoing necessities food

Instead of getting presents, Moose Morning Host, Rosalind Russell, asked for people to put together shoeboxes for the Espanola Helping Hand Food Bank. Around 20 shoeboxes and bags filled with necessities for men, women and children were collected. And, a huge shout out bank clients will need in the new year. Thank you!!

Espanola Royal Bank Staffers Gives Back

The Royal Bank staff in Espanola was busy preparing for the Holiday Season.

Tammy Meloche says the staff has been hosting dress down Fridays with the donations going to the Espanola Helping Hand Food Bank.

And last week, they wrapped boots for under-privileged children that need them.

The bank donated $1,000 to the cause.

And, Meloche adds the staff even gave up their Christmas Party this year to do up two Christmas baskets for two clients of Espanola Community Living.

Preliminary Study Of Little Current Swing Bridge Up For Review

A preliminary study of the Little Current Swing Bridge, which is the direct link to the mainland and Highway Six, is available for public review.

The Ministry of Transportation is hosting the study since the bridge may need replacing due to age and the cost of ongoing repairs and was modified for highway traffic in 1994. It undertook a study this fall outlining possible alternatives and have come up with five: do nothing and continue to maintain it as best they can; replace with a ferry; replace with a tunnel; replace with a moveable bridge or replace with a fixed bridge.

The Little Current Swing Bridge was built in 1913 by Algoma East Rail as a rail bridge connecting Manitoulin Island to the mainland. The second of three public review sessions is set for August where the alternatives will be discussed with the public.

For the link to the study, go to: <http://swingbridgestudy.ca/>

Recipe

This is a great recipe for holiday entertaining. You can substitute the pepperoni and mozzarella with bacon and cheddar cheese and also make these for breakfast.

Sausage and Pepperoni Pizza Puffs

- 3/4 cup flour
- 3/4 tsp baking powder
- 1/2 tsp garlic powder
- 3/4 cup whole milk
- 1 egg, lightly beaten
- 4 oz mozzarella cheese, shredded (about 1 cup)
- 2 oz mini turkey pepperoni, (about 1/2 cup)
- 4 oz sausage, cooked and crumbled
- 1/2 cup pizza sauce

Pre-heat the oven to 375°. Grease a 24-cup mini-muffin pan. In a large bowl, whisk together the flour, garlic powder and baking powder; whisk in the milk and egg. Stir in the mozzarella, sausage and pepperoni; let stand for 10 minutes. Stir the batter and divide among the mini-muffin cups. Bake until puffed and golden, 20 to 25 minutes. Meanwhile, microwave the pizza sauce until warmed through and serve with puffs for dipping.
