Wilson Officially Nominated As Liberal Candidate For AMK

Espanola's Heather Wilson was officially nominated as the Liberal candidate for Algoma-Manitoulin-Kapuskasing. Wilson says she, along with the Liberal Party, is in a position to create real change and by electing a Liberal MP, the riding will finally be back to having the support of a government in power.

She adds the party will not stop until traditions of support, care and progress are rebuilt in the riding.

The nomination meeting was held this weekend in Spanish.

The federal election is slated for October when she will take on incumbent, NDPer Carol Hughes.

Strategic Plan Moving Ahead In Espanola

Espanola council feel the public have a vital role to play in putting together the town's new Strategic Plan, which has not been updated since 2012. To that end, the council passed a motion on Tuesday night to have three members of the public at large sit on the steering committee, which will be formed in the near future. They also agreed to carry out another Oracle Poll for comment from the people of Espanola, and department heads and staff will also be asked for their input.

Council also agreed to approach LAMBAC, the local area business corporation, to provide assistance on an as-needed cost recovery basis. Council feels it is important that there be transparency and involvement with the public as part of the process.

Suddenly, Spring Is The New Winter

I think I lost my spring cleaning list ... in a snowbank.

Cold, cloudy, rainy, foggy, damp, drizzly and whatever the meteorological term for 'blah' is, this spring has given us an inkling of what it would be like to live in an Arctic rain forest. Or a car wash in downtown Iqaluit. Rainfall is setting records and flooding is at an all-time high. TV clips of people canoeing down Main Street and fishing off their front porches are getting old. I no longer mow my lawn I just sop it up with Bounty "the quicker picker upper."

I've put butterfly decals on all my windows to keep the birds from crashing into them. I used to think they were just disoriented at this time of year. Now I think they're trying to break into the house for a warmer place to mate.

Normally by now I'd have my set of wooden stairs hooked from the top of the breakwall to the beach but not this spring. No beach. Lake Erie is higher than it's ever been and according to the U.S. Corp of Engineers about to rise even higher this summer. So I placed the beach stairs against the house in case I have to take to the roof ahead of the surge.

Right now, for residents along the North Shore of Lake Erie there is a very fine line between living on the lake and living in the lake. In my case the demarcation line is 60 feet. Honestly, I don't know whether I should move the house back or just hook it up to an outboard motor.

Instead of blooming, the tulips are returning to Holland where at least they have dykes to protect them. I think today is the day I should weed the garden but I don't own a pair of waders.

Yesterday I hooked up a pump to drain the swamp that used to be my driveway and ... "Oh, hello Mr. President. What? No. The closest strip joint is in Niagara Falls."

Every night I go to bed listening to the waves hammering my concrete breakwall and ships honking at each other in the fog. Every morning I wake up with a soaker and I haven't left the house yet. As it turns out this spring's switch to daylight saving time gave us an extra hour of heavy rainfall.

Yesterday I heard what I thought was a chain saw next door but when I went to look, my neighbor was using an electric drill to install eave troughs on his car.

I mean seriously, this spring three straight days of rain has become known as 'a long weekend.' So cold and damp, this spring has people praying for stifling heat and unbearable humidity.

Exactly how bad is it?

Last weekend the sun came out and people reset their clocks and watches believing it must be a full moon. Environment Canada got tired of predicting rain, drizzle, high winds and thunderstorms so now they just say: "Okay, another lousy day today but at least there won't be hail!"

There's been so much rain in Toronto, flashers in that city really did have to wear rain coats! There's so much flooding in

Ontario, land owners are stressed out and alcohol consumption has nearly doubled prompting Premier Doug Ford to add that to his resume! So far this season the Blue Jays have had three games postponed because of rain... and that was with the roof closed! It's so bad Toronto city council has decided that instead of sand bagging the Toronto Islands they're going to keep the ferries running and rename the place Venice!

It's as if a dark cloud cover has replaced the planet's ozone layer. Case in point, in May, Neutrogena the company that makes sun screen laid off 4,000 employees and the next day they all got jobs at the GustBuster Umbrella Company.

The usually bitter spring has caused mariners to reword their ancient rhyme to: "Red sky at night, sailor's delight. Red sky at morning, another freakin' flood warning."

So much rain, the two remaining Beatles really are thinking about living in that Yellow Submarine. So much rain Port Colborne organizers of the International Walleye tournament are thinking of moving it indoors.

In this nation's capital, the Ottawa River is overflowing causing a serious septic situation with all the waste material that surfaces in the House of Commons during Question Period.

They've had so much rain in Niagara Falls, three dolphins escaped from Marineland and swam back in before anybody noticed. So much water is pouring over the Sir Adam Beck Generating Stations at Niagara Falls, Ontario Hydro is going to give us all a 25% discount on our electric bills. (Just wanted to make sure you were still reading this column!)

There's so much standing water out here in Wainfleet our MPP Sam Oosterhoff has switched his life-long quest from "Pro Life" to "Pro Life Jackets." Bottom line – hope, which normally springs eternal at this time of year has been put on hold indefinitely. Oh, and the bottom line? It's also under water.

Fantastic Time Had By All

THE AUTUMN LEAVES OF LEE VALLEY HALL want to say thank you to everyone who made their GRAND RE-OPENING a wonderful event. Plenty of people came to check out the hall and enjoy in the festivities over the two days of the event the weekend of May 31st and June 1st, 2019. It has seen weddings and wakes, hoe downs and meetings and will once again.

The Lee Valley Hall celebrated its 100th anniversary some years ago and has been the go-to place for socializing from the early days of tea parties to the more modern dance versions. However, it was closed for the last while until the Township of Sables-Spanish Rivers was able to reach a contract with the landowner for rental of the site.

The caretakers, the Autumn Leaves Seniors Group, hosted two days of festivities including cake, plenty of memorabilia, socializing, music and good food.

Visit www.aroundandabout.ca for more photos.

Recipe

I'm not going to lie to you; I haven't made this recipe yet. It's been circulating around the internet and it caught my attention. Any recipe that looks like a good use for the rhubarb growing in my garden catches my attention. Rhubarb is one of the first things that our garden produces and after a long winter, it makes me happy to cut the red stalks and make something with it. A simple hot water trick allows the cake to make its own sauce/pudding while baking, and the sugar topping creates a glaze on top of the cake. Serve warm with ice cream or whipped cream for a delicious spring time dessert.

Old Fashioned Rhubarb Pudding Cake Recipe

- 2 cups chopped rhubarb
- 1 3/4 cup sugar, divided
- 3 tablespoons butter, softened
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1/2 teaspoon almond extract
- 1 cup sifted flour
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 2/3 cup boiling water

Cover the bottom of an 8 or 9 inch square pan with the rhubarb. You could also use a deep dish glass pie plate. Mix 3/4 cup sugar, butter, baking powder, salt, extracts, milk and flour together (add a little more milk if it is too thick to pour); pour over rhubarb. Use a spatula to spread it around to cover the top. Mix remaining sugar and cornstarch; sprinkle over mixture in pan. Pour boiling water over the top. (I know this sounds strange, but it works to create a pudding around the rhubarb in the bottom of the pan.). Bake at 375°F for 45 minutes.
