Different Massey Fair This Year

By Rosalind Russell - There will be a Massey Fair this year, but with a very different approach taking in COVID-19 protocols. Brian Channon who volunteers with the Massey Agricultural Society says they are having a "Pioneering the Pandemic" event on August 29th, their answer to replace the cancelled Massey Fair. He says the society cancelled the largest fair of its kind due to the pandemic. However, there will be a one-day subdued celebration including a flea market, live entertainment by Railroad Steele and a drive-in that night with no limit on vehicles. However, anyone taking in any of the events at the fairgrounds must adhere to all COVID-19 rules. The society is also hosting a virtual competition featuring produce, crafts, photography and art work with winners to be announced on Fair Day. He suggests the public keep an eye on their Facebook Page for more information as the date draws near.

Saving A Life – Know How To Use A Defibrillator

By Rosalind Russell - An Espanola man saved another by knowing how to use a defibrillator.

Espanola Royal Canadian Legion President Gary MacPherson was carrying out Legion business with member and Sergeants-at-Arms Don Arbour when Arbour collapsed back on June 11th.

Arbour, who is 66, had stents inserted in a vein near his heart nine years ago. He says he felt no pain, nothing when he collapsed.

"I love to run, I run about five kilometres a day. That day, I ran about 2.5 kilometres to the Legion to meet up with Gary to sign cheques and finish

Buffalo Takes Yet Another Kick In The Butt

In their desperate, last-minute search for a temporary home, the Toronto Blue Jays looked like that big dumb dog at the Humane Society, the one everybody adores but nobody wants to adopt. Nobody wanted the Jays after being rejected by Canada, Pittsburg, Baltimore and Florida... except Buffalo, New York. Blue Jay executives and players let it be known that bush-league Buffalo was their very last choice for a pandemic home and in fact they considered playing all their games on the road rather than settle for Sahlen Field. Well, the hot dogs slipped the bun, boys because your new home is "Weiner Field" and the warning track is the New York freeway.

Typical of Buffalonian's luck: Major League Baseball is coming to your city and you won't be able to see it--except on TV or from the shoulder of that freeway. Sahlen Field sure wasn't Toronto's Field Of Dreams—"Build it but we ain't comin'!" Formerly known as Pilot Field, it's a charming and comfortable Triple-A ballpark but without major league amenities. But to listen to the dissing of the Blue Jay's you'd have thought the place lacked an outfield fence and a home plate.

It seems the city of Buffalo, New York just can't win for losing. One of the best franchises in NFL history, Jim Kelly's Buffalo Bills went to the Super Bowl four times in a row in the early 1990's. No other team has ever been so consistently successful and yet they will forever be remembered as the team that didn't win it. In the 1970's the Buffalo Sabres iced the "French Connection," the most exciting line in hockey history and they'll always be remembered for twice having advanced to the Stanley Cup finals and going home without the trophy. (Thanks of course to Philadelphia Flying Goons and Brett Hull's illegal foot in the crease.)

The NBA's Buffalo Braves were a 70's team of great talent and lousy management. In a suspicious bait n' switch, three franchises swapped homes and the "City of Light" was left with an empty arena. First in America to install electric street lamps, last to see the shining of silver trophies.

Buffalo's bad luck has not been limited to sports. Saddled with poor transportation, the city finally built a subway system in the early 1980's but by then most of the people had moved to the suburbs and many companies had left town. Once a thriving trading port in the 1800's--the Erie Canal made Buffalo the commercial linchpin between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic Ocean--the city has seen 55% of its population shrink in the last 75 years. Unlike those folks who slag the "Queen City" for its snow storms, high crime, and contribution to fine dining--chicken wings--I quite like the place. (I still hold Frank and Teresa of the Anchor Bar personally responsible for my high cholesterol.)

In my last book about the losingest horse in thoroughbred racing history one chapter was titled: "If Zippy Chippy Were A City, He'd Be Buffalo, New York." Like "The Zipster," the city seems to take one giant stride forward and then somebody bumps it two lengths back.

Thirty years ago, the symbol of the city's cultural renaissance was a work of art called Green Lightning, commissioned by the city and created by sculptor Billie Lawless. Everybody supported the project, but nobody really understood it. Spread out on the ground, it looked like an unlit jumble of neon tubes on a green silkscreened background.

But when they plugged it in on the night of the grand unveiling, oh yeah, they knew what they were looking at! When the neon lights lit up the sculpture in the sky, Mayor Jimmy Griffin's head almost exploded. His guests, dignitaries including governor Mario Cuomo, either stared at their feet in embarrassment or put their hands over their mouths to stifle laughter.

Billie Lawless's neon-and-wire masterpiece, meant to spear-head the rebirth of Buffalo's entertainment scene, was a vivid depiction of--wait for it--two penises dressed like the Planters Peanut character, doing a snappy little dance number and wearing top hats, white gloves and tails. Yeah, Green Lightning--shuckin' and jivin' with well-dressed junk. For cartoon characters, they sure had heart: two dicks dancing like crazy.

Going ballistic, Griffin pulled the plug immediately and later tried to have the artwork destroyed. The mayor was subsequently found guilty in court of violating Mr. Lawless's civil rights. Apparently there is nothing in the United States Constitution about the "right to bear schlongs." Oddly, Green Lightning was shipped to Chicago where it was displayed for the next ten years without a whisper of protest.

I'm thinking it was just a matter of a bad title. Green Lightning was abstract and meaningless, and just confused everybody. I've always been a believer that the title of a piece of art should state exactly what the beholder is looking at. My title for that particular work of art should have been: It's Just One F#@%@king Thing After Another.

Buffalo, Zippy Chippy and now the Toronto Foot Longs--hard not to love them, even if they're an acquired taste. Like suicide wings, beef on weck, and Flutie Flakes.

Funding For Transit And Community Projects

There's some good news for municipal governments, struggling with financial problems due to the coronavirus pandemic.

Two-billion dollars, split between the provincial and federal governments, will be allocated to transit systems to help them cope with lost revenue and additional expenses incurred for protective measures and cleaning.

Another two-billion dollars of federal and provincial money will go to municipalities to help with community assistance projects and public health.

Ontario received seven-billion dollars from the federal government as part of its "Safe Restart" program.

There's still about five-billion dollars in that fund to be allocated.

Household Hazardous Waste Day Coordinated Between Four Local Communities

A joint Household Hazardous Waste Day is being hosted by four local area communities.

Joel Yusko, the public works manager in Espanola says the townships of Baldwin, Nairn & Hyman and Sables-Spanish Rivers has teamed up with the Town of Espanola to help residents get rid of toxic waste that cannot be disposed of in landfills.

Residents from all four communities can bring their waste to the public works garage in Espanola on Saturday, September 26th between 8 am to 4 pm.

Yusko adds there is a wide range of hazardous waste residents may not be aware of, such as batteries, light bulbs, cleansers, even cosmetics, so visit espanola.ca for the complete list or click on the photo.

Some Legions Remain Closed While Some Are Open

Royal Canadian Legions across Ontario had the option of reopening earlier this month as part of Stage

Three of the COVID-19 provincial sanctions.

However, several have decided to remain closed for at least another month.

Massey #432, Blind River #189 and Little Current #177 all remain closed although some are continuing to fundraise, such as hosting take out nights with no contact. The three all plan to remain closed for at least another month to see how COVID-19 Stage Three unfolds and the protocols are updated. Espanola #39 and Gore Bay #514 have chosen to open and both have COVID-19 protocols in place.

Saving A Life – Know How To Use A Defibrillator

up some Legion business. I remember signing a cheque and then nothing.”

MacPherson, who had learned how to use the portable defibrillator they have installed in the hall, called 911 and then began resuscitation procedures on Arbour.

“We were just working and I heard a strange noise, looked up and Don had collapsed on the floor. He was on his stomach and I rolled him over on to his back and then I had to get his arm out from underneath as well. He was very, very heavy. It wasn’t easy to do. He was purple. I worked as quickly as I could.”

“I had already called 911 and they were on the phone with me. I ran to the defibrillator, followed the instructions and brought him back. By then, Manitoulin-Sudbury Emergency Medical Services had arrived and whisked him away.”

MacPherson personally went looking for Don’s wife, Liz, and family members to tell them what happened. He did not want to do it over the phone, more so since he and Don had been friends a long time.

Arbour was flown to Health Sciences North in Greater Sudbury within the hour and EMS had to use a defibrillator four more times to bring him back.

“Most people, when they are revived, wake up and have some idea of where they are. I wasn’t doing that. They had to put me in an ice bath when I arrived in Sudbury and induce a coma. I woke up a couple of days after I collapsed wondering where I was and what was going on.”

Meanwhile, a supervisor of EMS had made a special trip back to the Legion to shake MacPherson’s hand stating, “you saved his life.”

MacPherson says the piece of equipment should be in every public place because, to put it simply, it works!

A defibrillator is a machine that sends a high energy electric shock through the heart. This high energy electric shock is called defibrillation. The aim of this shock is to return a heart to its normal working state if it goes into cardiac arrest.

He says, ironically, it was Arbour who had pushed for the defibrillator to be installed in the hall.

Arbour says he is grateful to MacPherson and for having the equipment in place.

“I had to have three stents put in my heart and am now on blood thinners, but I am alive, I am here. I had some short memory loss, but have now fully recovered.”

He adds the only thing that worries him is he had no warning signs and there is no easy test to make sure his stents are fine.

“I had no idea that the stents they put in nine years ago had completely blocked up. The doctors say there is no way to know if that is happening and doing a dye test is considered invasive, but I guess have to live with that. I am grateful to be here and will take care of myself best I can.”

Both men feel every Legion, let alone every public place should have a defibrillator and as many people as possible should know how to use one.

Arbour plans to continue his work at the Legion and his other interests and has a very important new one: a grandchild born just a week ago.

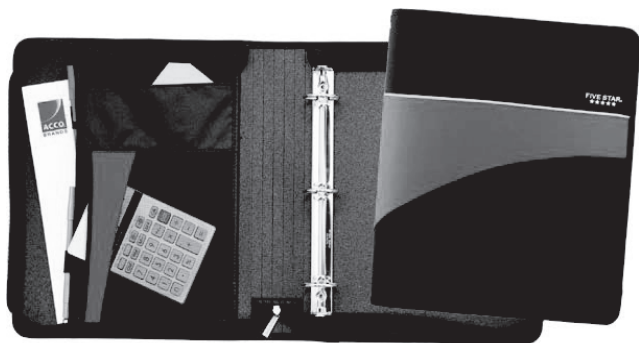

His wife Liz says, “Gary is a hero. We are so grateful to him for saving Don’s life.”

She also agrees access to a defibrillator should be available to everyone so more lives can be saved.

Local Adventures

As a result of COVID-19, most people have been keeping their travels local this summer - which sounds good to me! Local travel has a much smaller impact on mother earth than lengthy trips in the car or on a plane.

This week I thought I'd share a few of my favourite local spots to explore:

- Chutes Provincial Park in Massey: Wonderful hiking trail with several views of the chutes and some spots to swim.
- Mississagi Provincial Park in Elliot Lake: Multiple hiking trails and swimming spots - my favourite being the Helenbar Lake Trail!
- Cup & Saucer Trail off Hwy 540 on Manitoulin Island: a beautiful trail through the Manitoulin extension of the Niagara Escarpment that offers amazing views of the Island.
- Willisville Lookout on Willisville Rd: a quick, but very steep, hike up the mountain for a gorgeous panoramic view. Wear good shoes!

Have a happy hippie week!

Tax Deadline Extended To End Of September

The federal government has again extended the deadline for paying any 2019 taxes you may owe.

The April 30th date was originally extended until September first, to keep more money circulating in the economy during the coronavirus pandemic.

That has now been pushed back to September 30th.

RECIPE

If you know me, then you will know that this recipe isn't mine. I cannot tolerate spicy food; but my friend who loves spicy food has highly recommended it for my column. Creamy potatoes with a bit of a kick, takes this potato salad over the top! Potatoes are tossed with a creamy dressing, celery, diced eggs and quick pickled onions and jalapeños. It's got crunch, spice, and a creamy yet tangy dressing. If time permits, make at least one day ahead. It's even better on the second day.

TEXAS POTATO SALAD

- 2 lbs Yukon Gold Potatoes sliced into 1" cubes, skin on
- 3/4 Tbsp + 1 3/4 tsp salt
- 2 eggs
- 1/3 Cup Red Wine Vinegar
- 1 Tbsp sugar
- 1 cup Red Onion sliced thin, into 1/2 moons
- 2 Fresh Jalapeños, medium, 1-sliced into rings, 1 minced (seeds included) with 1/2 the minced reserved for garnish
- 5 Tbsp Yellow Mustard
- 5 Tbsp Mayonnaise
- 1 tsp Ground Pepper
- 1/16 tsp Cayenne Pepper, ground
- 1/2 cup Celery thinly sliced, about 1 rib
- 2 Tbsp Finely Chopped Chives for garnish
- Paprika, optional

In a large pot, add potatoes and cover with cold water. Add 3/4 Tbsp salt. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer for between 8-15 minutes. Simmer until just fork tender, but not mushy. Drain. Hard boil the eggs, peel and dice. Meanwhile, in a medium bowl, whisk together vinegar, sugar, and 1 tsp salt. Add onions and jalapeños to the brine (reserve 1/2 the minced jalapeños for garnish). Marinate for at least 20 minutes stirring occasionally. Drain, reserving pickling brine. When potatoes are done put into a large mixing bowl and add 3 tbsps of the pickling brine. Place in refrigerator for 20 minutes. Add pickled jalapenos, onions, celery and eggs to the potatoes. For the dressing, whisk together the mustard, mayonnaise, pepper, 3/4 tsp salt and cayenne pepper. Pour over salad, reserving a few tbsps of dressing. Gently mix. Taste and add more pickling brine or reserved dressing to your desired taste. Garnish with minced jalapenos, chives and sprinkle with paprika if desired. Refrigerate for at least an hour. Flavour and spiciness will improve as it sits. Keep in mind when adjusting flavours.
