Baskets Of Kindness Help Nairn Centre Seniors

By Rosalind Russell - Seniors in Nairn Centre had some special visits from members of the Espanola Lions Club. Volunteers delivered 'Baskets of Kindness' to the seniors in the Township of Nairn and Hyman.

The township received funding from the Government of Canada's New Horizons for Seniors Program in partnership with United Way Centraide North East Ontario.

The funds help improve the lives of seniors and foster their social inclusion while helping organizations provide support to seniors dealing with the impacts of COVID-19.

Among her implications, she has served as school president for the past two years, represented the school on various sports teams while remaining a role model for her peers on several other committees such as the WE Day committee. Christen is also recognized for having put in place a leadership program for grade 4 to 8 students at École Saint-Joseph, ÉSC Franco-Ouest's feeder school.

Pro Sport Nicknames Are Important And Silly

Nicknames are not real names. For example Tesla's Elon Musk and his girlfriend (no known first name) Grimes just had a baby girl. Did they name her Ellen after him or Grimmy after her or the bull terrier in the Mother Goose cartoon? No, they named the newborn X AE A12. That's right, little X AE A12 will be toddling off to kindergarten before you know it and crawling into her own lunch box to escape the catcalls from other kids.

Ah Elon, Mary Musk is a real name. I believe X AE A12 is either Martian for "I come in peace" or the chemical symbol for Xanax which is great if you're depressed which I'm quickly becoming because weakass nicknames and simply stupid real names make me crazy!

Last week, baseball legend Steve Dalkowski died at age 80 after contracting COVID-19. The wildest but fastest pitcher anyone had ever seen including the great Ted Williams, Dalkowski inspired the role of the lunatic speedballer played by Tim Robbins in Bull Durham, the best sports movie ever! Ever! Dalkowski's nickname was "Nuke" and in the movie "Nuke La Loosh."

Last month the much-loved, legendary Harlem Globetrotter, Fred Neal died at age 77. Few knew Neal's first name was Fred because he was as bald as a cue ball and fans and teammates alike only knew him as "Curly."

Last summer Olympic gold medalist boxer Pernell Whitaker died after he was hit by a car. "Sweet Pea" was just 55. Days later the first black to play for the Boston Red Sox died at 85. Once again, old sports fans were confused. "Elijah Green? Oh you mean Pumpsie." Green himself could not remember why his mother called him "Pumpsie," the name that stuck with him for a lifetime.

Nuke, Curly, Sweet Pea and Pumpsie--original pet names of endearment and humour that gave each player an added measure of mystique.

Nobody knows how the great Willie Mays got the nickname "The Say Hey Kid" but it's still very cool. "Tiger" Woods, a ferocious competitor who devoured his opponents made fans forget his real first name is Eldrick. Wayne Gretzky was gifted "The Great One" moniker by fans who could not have seen Bobby Orr play or watched 'Slava' Fetisov in the wonderful documentary Red Army. Like a lot of other important elements pro sports have lost like player loyalty, fan allegiance and real characters--great nicknames have also bit the dust. "Shoeless" Joe Jackson, "Clipboard Jesus" Whitehorse, "Air Jordan" and "Big Papi" Ortiz.

Nicknames used to mean something. NBA star Karl Malone was called "The Mailman" because he always delivered when it mattered most. Yankees Lou Gerig, "The Iron Horse" played in 2,130 consecutive games. Fellow Yankee "Joltin Joe" Dimaggio still owns a 56-game hitting streak record that will never be touched. Cal Ripkin beat Gerig's record by playing 2,632 games. His nickname? "The Iron Man." How very unoriginal, speaking of which...Toronto professional athletes.

Former Blue Jays pitcher Marcus Stroman's nickname was "Stro" while current phenom Vladimir Guerrero's nickname is "Vladdy." Ashtone Morgan, the longest serving FC footballer's handle is "Ash." And the Leafs!

Mitch Marner, the league's offensive magician is known to his teammates as "Marns." Frederik Anderson responds to either "Freddy" or "Andy." Good Gawd. And Auston Matthews goes by "Matty." Marner's tag should be "Magic." Anderson's size and coolness under pressure should make him "The Refrigerator" and Auston should be known as "Moon" Matthews. Definitely not a fighter, he still likes to drop 'em on occasion.

To be clear nicknames are just fun labels of affection for teammates and friends. For instance Maurice Richard, the greatest scorer in NHL history was nicknamed the "Rocket" for his explosive speed and short fuse. On the other hand Rocket Rodriguez is the real name given him by his film-making parents Robert Rodriguez and Elizabeth Avellan. In a riot of alliteration Rocket's brothers are named--not making this up--Racer, Rebel and Rogue. Those names--Rocket, Racer, Rebel and Rogue would look great painted on the side of a homemade car in the Soap Box Derby but not so much on your driver's license.

By the way, Maurice's brother Henri Richard died four months ago at the age of 84. Winning 11 Stanley Cups, at 5'7" in height, he should have earned a nickname like the "Giant de la Glace" or "Henry the Navigator." But because he was the "Rocket's" little brother he was forever known as the "Pocket Rocket." Henry's younger brother Claude just missed making the Montreal Canadiens roster. His nickname? "The Vest Pocket Rocket." Not kidding. Had Mr. & Mrs. Richard kept producing hockey players, fans might have been treated to a Hab's backup goalie with the nickname "The Back Pocket," a fancy-skating, puck-stealer known as "The Pick Pocket." A penalty-killer even smaller than Henri would have been known simply as "The Pouch."

The Leafs at their best with "Red" Kelly and "The Big M" for Mahavlich will never beat the Montreal Canadiens with "Newsy" Lalande and "Boom Boom!" Geoffrion (his slap shot made that noise!) in the game of great nicknames.

Rainbow Board And ETFO Elementary Teachers Reach Tentative Agreement

Rainbow District School Board and the Federation representing over 600 permanent elementary teachers in Sudbury, Espanola and Manitoulin Island have reached a tentative agreement at the local level.

Details of the agreement will be released once ratified by members of the Elementary Teachers' Federation of Ontario (Rainbow Local) and approved by Rainbow District School Board Trustees.

The new deal, if ratified and approved, will be in effect from September 1, 2019 to August 31, 2022, aligning with the provincial settlement at the central bargaining table.

"We are pleased to reach a tentative agreement with the ETFO Rainbow Local," said Rainbow District School Board Chair Doreen Dewar. "Our elementary teachers responded to distance learning with creativity, care and compassion. We commend the bargaining teams from the Federation and the Board for their collective efforts. This is much welcome news in the last week of school."

Hiking with Your Furry Friend

It's officially hiking season, which means I'm bringing my new puppy out on the trails! Here are a few basic guidelines I have been following to keep my pup happy and safe on our adventures:

1. Be mindful of physical fitness.

Choose a trail that is appropriate for your pup's age, breed, and fitness level.

2. Be respectful. First, be sure that any trails you're using allow dogs. Second, unless your dog has EXCELLENT recall, keep them on a leash to avoid disturbing other hikers or wildlife.

3. Plenty of food and water. Food or treats with high protein can help fuel dogs during a hike, and much like humans -- dogs need to stay hydrated too! Offer water to your pup every 15-30 mins and assume that if you're thirsty, they probably are too.

4. Leave no trace. Scoop any poop along the way, disposing of it in appropriate trash receptacles. If you're on a multi-day hike with no trash bins, walk 70 paces away from any paths, campsites, and water sources, bury the poop in a hole at least 6 inches deep, and disguise the spot when you're finished.

5. Stay cool. Dogs can suffer from heat stroke, so on particularly hot days, be sure to take frequent rests in the shade, offer plenty of water, and use water or a damp cloth to cool the back of your dog's neck and ears.

6. Stay safe. Don't let your dog drink stagnant water or chew on plants, as they can contain bacteria and natural poison that can harm them.

Recipe

This recipe comes from one of my daughter's best friends. It's so quick and easy, but full of flavour! The maple syrup adds a wonderful sweetness that compliments the spice of the turmeric – which also has potent anti-inflammatory and antioxidant properties.

Maple Turmeric Orzo and Chicken Salad

- 1 cup orzo
- 1 1/2 cup chicken, cooked and cut into pieces
- 2 cups fresh spinach, chopped
- 1 red pepper, cubed
- 1/4 cup flat parsley, chopped
- Feta to taste
- Salt and pepper, to taste

Vinaigrette

- 2 tbsp olive oil
- 1 tbsp maple syrup
- 1 tbsp lemon juice
- 1 tsp turmeric powder

Cook orzo in a pot of salted, boiling water, according to package instructions. Drain and rinse in cold water. While it's cooking, combine chicken, vegetables, and parsley in a large bowl. Prepare the vinaigrette by whisking together its ingredients. Add the cooled orzo to the chicken-vegetable mixture. Pour on vinaigrette, add feta, and toss. Season with salt and pepper
