Improvements Continue
At Black Creek Picnic And Fishing Pier Area

PHOTO: The Black Creek Pier was recently painted and now it has a new coating of stain, thanks to volunteers who help maintain the property. Photo provided by Dennis Lendrum

By Rosalind Russell - It never stops, but an Espanola man enjoys making sure a gathering place in Espanola continues to be a great place for picnickers and fishers alike.

Dennis Lendrum was armed with paintbrushes, stain and volunteers last week giving the Black Creek Pier a refreshing look.

Owned by the Espanola Game and Fish Club, last summer, he voluntarily mended picnic tables, cleaned up the site and continues to make improvements to it.

Celebrating outstanding ÉSC La Renaissance Graduating Students

Despite this extraordinary school year, École secondaire catholique La Renaissance (Espanola) was able to celebrate the successes of grade 12 graduates. In addition to offering a virtual ceremony to graduates and their families, the school staff went above and beyond to mark this milestone in their academic and personal development. Congratulations to the remarkable graduates of 2021 and good luck on your next adventures!

"We wish our graduates a great deal of success in the next stages of their life. We encourage them to tap into the wealth of knowledge they have acquired in CSC Nouvelon schools while remaining outstanding and well-rounded citizens who are proud to be Catholic and Francophone and are ready to take their place in society," said Mr. André Bidal, CSC Nouvelon board Chair.

"We congratulate our graduates for having drawn on their technological skills with such success and for showing tenacity and resilience. Through this effort and their ability to surpass themselves and meet new challenges, our students can take pride in having completed their high school studies with flying colors. They can now look to the future with confidence," added Mr. Paul Henry, Director of Education at CSC Nouvelon.

Lendrum received kudos for those efforts with the presentation of the Person of Impact Award in April after being nominated by the local branch, of the Northern Credit Union.

With the monetary award from the branch and volunteers, work on the site continues. He just asks the public to respect the green space and leave it the way the found it, clean and pristine.

Clear Lake Beach Now Reopened And Lifeguards On Duty

Municipalities have opened beaches throughout the Manitoulin and North Channel corridor with Public Health Sudbury & Districts carrying out testing as needed. The Town of Espanola officially opened Clear Lake Beach last week and lifeguards will also be on site throughout the month of July.

Children's summer programs are usually in place, but with COVID-19 restrictions only being gradually lifted, many of those will not run including the beach program.

However, there are family activities available at Boogie Mountain and at the Espanola Public Library.

Visit espanola.ca for various municipal programs now available with the lifting of COVID-19 restrictions.

Oh, How I Miss An Open Border - Not The Crossing But The Comedy

Open or closed? Fully vaccinated or permanent resident? Essential workers or spouses in separation? Confusion reigns along our 8, 891-kilometre, international border. For now the 'toilet seat' principle remains in effect. As hard as we try, we can't quite 'wishful think' this pandemic away.

The official end to the dark days of COVID-19 — at least this promising stage — will not come until the Canada/US border is opened to all crossborder travellers, no exceptions.

I miss going to Buffalo — a movie at the North Park Theatre, a beef-on-weck at Joey's Bar watching the Buffalo Bisons play... in Trenton, New Jersey!?!

Mostly I miss the everyday comedy that the closure of our border has put an end to. Years ago I interviewed Bob, a retiree from Canada Border Services Agency who kept notes on some of the more interesting exchanges between him and Americans entering our country at Niagara Falls' Rainbow Bridge. A few of them went like this...

Bob: "Where do you live?"

Young, tongue-thickened man: "Fishhook."

Bob: "Fishhook?"

Kid: "Yeah, Fishhook. It's at the end of the line, stupid."

Bob: "Okay, pull over. Secondary inspection."

I'd seen that movie play in the backseat of my 1957 Chevy while I was driving the boys back from an evening of under-age drinking at Jackson's Bar in Niagara Falls, New York. There was always that one guy!

Officer: "Where's home?"

Answers: "Welland. Welland. Port Colborne. Fonthill. (Long pause.) Balls Falls."

Officer: "Balls Falls?"

That one guy: "Yeah, it's near Pecker's Point."

That's it. Everybody out of the car.

A young man once explained to Bob why the floor of his car was covered with marijuana seeds: "I had the window down and they blew in from the expressway."

On another occasion Bob's female colleague found several hunks of hash in the underwear of a woman returning to Canada from The States. Explanation: "I don't know how they got there. These aren't even my underwear!" And no, 'seed guy' and 'hash girl' were not travelling together. Eventually however, they would find each other on EHarmony.

Another woman coming back to Canada after a wild weekend in New York City had a unique personal device go off like a lawnmower as soon as Bob opened her suitcase. Awkward.

Sometimes Americans entering Canada are confused about the questions. Officer to an American who said he was going over to his cottage in Canada: "What's the length of your stay in Canada?"

American: "Not too big. Maybe thirty feet by forty."

Then there was the no-nonsense guy in a suit who flashed his Buffalo Police Department badge as soon as he pulled up to Bob's window.

In transit to Detroit," he said. That's code for official police business.

"That your prisoner?" Asked Bob, pointing to the scruffy looking passenger.

"Ah, that's my superior," replied the detective.

Oops and again, awkward.

All officers ask the standard question: "And the purpose of your visit to Canada is pleasure?"

Man, immediately and straight-faced: "Oh, no. I'm on my way to visit my mother-in-law."

Sometimes it's a bit of an accent that causes the problem.

Inspector: "What are you bringing into Canada?"

Driver: "Some poo?"

Inspector: "Some poo?"

Driver: "Yes, some poo."

Inspector: "And that's for fertilizer."

Driver: "No it's for washing hair."

Sometimes the questions come the other way.

Woman: "Excuse me, are you a Canadian?"

Officer: "Yes."

Woman: "No, I mean a Royal Canadian."

A good rule of thumb? Customs officers are normally sitting down and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police are usually on horseback with music playing in the background.

Customs officials also get a lot of questions over the phone. Believe it or not, the most common is: "What is the most satisfactory method of smuggling goods across the border?" (Hey, you might as well give it a shot!) Less of those inquiries now, what with 'call display.'

Another question: "How fast do your speed cops go? In Celsius?"

Answer: "If they're using wind-powered, anti-radar detectors, they can do 200 clicks an hour."

Question: "If I bring my dog into Canada, do I need his birth certificate?"

Answer: "Heck no. A valid driver's licence and two pieces of photo I.D. are fine."

Question: "When may I be sure the customs officials are not on duty at the border?"

Answer: July 1, Canada Day. We close the whole damn country down."

Do customs authorities meet some strange characters in their line of duty? Well, that depends on your definition of strange. In his 30 years of service, Bob has stopped and questioned: King Edward VI driving across the border in the middle of the afternoon... and buck-naked; a 200-pound, four-foot-tall go go dancer named Twiggy; a guy with a carload of snakes on the loose which he assured Bob, were nonvenomous. He interviewed Saint Peter on a freezing night in January wearing only a robe and carrying a bedroll. (They turned him back when they found a loaded .45 in the bedroll.)

Colleagues of Bob have confiscated baby turtles, chocolates infused with methamphetamines, a grass cutter rat, a late model Aston Marten car and sausage diapers. Of course the sausages were discovered by two sniffer canines and I'm hoping at least one of them was a 'wiener dog.' So whenever that border does finally open, remember those custom officers have had a year every bit as bad as yours. Be nice, be clear and you'll be on your way.

Oh, and if your grass cutter rat needs to pee, get him out for a walk before you get to the border. Okay?

Recipe

This is another recipe that was recommended to me. If you are a ranch fan, you will love these. They are a tex-mex version of enchiladas. Easy to prepare and a simply delicious meal. If you don't want to prepare the chicken in a crockpot, you can bake it or boil it, then shred and add the taco seasoning and chicken broth. Serve with Mexican or Cilantro Lime Rice for a complete meal.

Ranch Chicken Enchiladas

- 3 to 4 medium boneless skinless chicken breasts
- 1/2 cup chicken broth
- 1 packet (1 ounce) taco seasoning
- 3/4 cup salsa
- 3/4 cup prepared Ranch dressing
- 1 to 2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
- 8 medium flour tortillas

Place 1/2 cup chicken broth in a crockpot, add the chicken breasts and taco seasoning. Cover and cook on low heat for 3 hours or until chicken is fully cooked. Remove chicken from crockpot and shred. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Spray a 9 x 13 baking dish with cooking spray. Stir the salsa and ranch dressing together until combined. Spread a thin layer of salsa-ranch mixture on the bottom of the baking dish. Take one tortilla and place 1/3 cup of chicken down the center. Top with 1 tbsp of cheese and 2 tbsps on the salsa-ranch mixture. Roll up and place in the baking dish. Repeat with remaining tortillas. Pour the remaining salsa-ranch mixture over enchiladas and then sprinkle evenly with remaining cheddar cheese. Bake for 25-30 minutes, or until cheese is melted and enchiladas are heated through. Drizzle top with more ranch dressing, if desired and serve.

Espanola Receives Federal Funding For Green Municipal Fund Announcement

Espanola will receive the brunt of a federal funding announcement for the Federation of Canadian Municipalities' Green Municipal Fund.

Federal Minister of Health Patty Hajdu and Joanne Vanderheyden, President of the Federation of Canadian Municipalities announced the $1.4-million investment which will help reduce greenhouse gas emissions in communities in Northern Ontario.

Mayor Jill Beer was pleased to be part of the Zoom meeting announcing the town is receiving nearly $1.3-million dollars for its biosolids management and digester optimization project. The benefits of this project include reduced GHGs equivalent to 591 tonnes of carbon dioxide over the next 20 years, lowered energy consumption of 40 percent and $100,000 annual savings in biosolid hauling and treatment costs, as well as less transports on the highways increasing safety for travellers.

Beer says the work is already started on a new building which will be part of the waste-water treatment plant allowing for winter processing of waste.

She adds $1.1-million is in the form of a loan plus a $166,500 grant from the feds.

The rest of the funding will be shared between Timmins, Kenora and Bracebridge for local green projects.

The City of Timmins will receive $86,500 to investigate opportunities to transform its wastewater pollution control plant into a net-zero resource recovery facility by exploring source-separated organic availability and the most beneficial uses of increased biogas production.

The City of Kenora will receive $40,000 to advance climate action with a Sustainable Neighbourhood Action Plan (SNAP) to reduce emissions, cut energy waste and move toward more sustainable sources of energy as part of its efforts to manage the effects of a changing climate.

The Town of Bracebridge will receive $36,000 to study the feasibility of building a net-zero recreational and cultural centre that will include an ice rink.
