He says his grandfather lived in India while he was in Canada, and he was unable to spend time with him during his last days. Pandey says when COVID began it made him realize how isolated seniors are and he wanted to do something to bring them happiness.

He is raising money through a Go Fund Me to buy and distribute gifts to senior home residents at the Queensway Place Assisted Living and the Nursing Home at Espanola

Tim Hortons Partners With Justin Bieber. Yeah, Like Canadian Tire And Kanye West!

So about three years ago No Frills launched their 'Hauler' line of clothing and to match the store itself, all items are yellow. I thought great — that's where I want to buy my bright yellow boxer shorts, scarves, T-shirts and sweatshirts because I've always wanted to dress to be seen... by people on the space station.

A spokesperson said the clothing line was meant to reward customer loyalty and I'm thinking — you raise your price just 2% above that of Food Basics and up goes the yellow "For Lease" sign in front of your yellow building.

Then Justin Bieber launched his 'Drew House' line of clothing, all distinctly stamped with a great big yellow happy face and I thought... how clever. Because I always wanted to walk around looking like the most overused and unoriginal meme on the planet. Plus, it's yellow, so I could accessorize by wearing a yellow hoodie over yellow boxer shorts and scare school children during Halloween.

I thought 'The Bieb's' togs might be available at my local No Frills supermarket/clothing outlet but no, the supply was so limited you had to actually enter a draw and win the privilege to purchase his items.

The sheer originality of Bieber's choice of colour jumped out at me. I wondered if, in one of his creative meditation sessions he was reminiscing about the yellow yolk dripping off the side of his neighbour's house that he egged near Los Angeles. Or was it the yellow pee he squirted into that mop bucket in a restaurant in New York. Or maybe the yellow caution flag the police threw up when he was arrested for drag racing on a residential street in Miami. Yellow, the colour of kookoo bananas.

Then didn't the pop star who once claimed Anne Frank would be his biggest fan, a 'Belieber' manage to score a 'limited collection collaboration of clothing' with the Toronto Maple Leafs. When you think about it — what pro sports franchise wouldn't want to be closely associated with a celebrity who was once caught trying to cross an international border with an undocumented monkey?!!

Unfortunately, you can't buy a stuffed toy rendition of Bieber's pet capuchin monkey because poor little O.G. Mally is now holding a tin cup and attached to an aging organ grinder on a street somewhere in Germany. But for $78 you can purchase "Carlton", a Toronto Maple Leaf teddy bear with a 'The Bieb's' big yellow happy face smile. For just $238 (plus tax) you can purchase a pair of bright blue Drew House sweatpants, again with Carlton looking at you... and equally astounded.

Prospective purchasers are warned that those flashy sweatpants, at roughly the same price as I paid for my first car, are in very limited supply. But for me ... that supply can never be limited enough.

At this point I should caution you that I've never done hard drugs, never suffered a serious concussion and I am not making this stuff up!

Now that should have been the end of these sort of preposterous for-profit partnerships between the richest franchise in professional hockey that hasn't won a Stanley Cup in 52 years and the kid who not all that long ago was caught on a security camera stealing a bicycle. However just last week Justin Bieber, who spits on people and beats on people convinced Tim Hortons that they weren't selling enough sugar-laden hunks of dough. Apparently children were beginning to show signs of calmness. So voila! Timbiebs!

Honest. Bieber came up with the flavours of these Timbits himself — birthday cake waffle, sour cream chocolate chip and chocolate white fudge — calories to die for, type 2 diabetes in a box of ten. You have to see the sales video on You Tube; it's ten times funnier than it's supposed to be.

Timbiebs! You'd think they'd be yellow and come in flavours of banana and lemon with yellow happy face memes on top. Trust me, I will walk into a Tim Hortons and order a box of Timbiebs the day the guy behind me says: "Keep moving! I swear this thing is loaded!" As a pre-promotional, Bieber ventured out in public wearing a yellow hoodie over a yellow shirt and was promptly stung half to death by an oversized and angry bumblebee played by the late John Belushi.

It's a shame that at $269 (tax included) they're not within my wardrobe budget because I always wanted to appear on the cover of Vogue magazine in blazing blue tight sweatpants and a yellow knit toque over a yellow chiffon scarf next to actor Harry Styles in a Gucci jacket and a white cotton dress fitted with a Harris Reed Victorian crinoline even if it was just to make Dennis Rodman jealous.

The good news is that Justin Bieber's aspirations to become the Jeff Bezos of clap trap merchandising might be slowing down. First, he did not partner with Burger King when they introduced a blazing bright camouflage shirt to cover the sloppy spillage of ketchup, BBQ sauce, cheese and mustard from an oozing Whopper. Then he failed to get in bed with Kentucky Fried Chicken when they introduced pillowcases featuring the face of Colonel Sanders. Shame, because Bieber could have introduced his all-new Chicken McNutters and go head-to-head with McDonald's. Seriously, if this world gets any wackier, Donald Trump will not be the next president of the United States. Bum Farto, the drug-dealing former fire chief of Key West will be America's next Commander-in-Chief.

Recipe

If I had to pick a favourite family recipe that I've been eating since I was a kid; homemade potato soup would definitely be one of the top 5.

My mom would serve each steaming bowl with a dollop of butter melting across the top, and my dad and I would tear up a piece of white bread and add it to our bowl. I still eat potato soup with bread in it and never crackers. My kids grew up eating it as well, and it's my middle son's favourite soup. Over the years I have adjusted the recipe just a bit (I now add celery) and I have tasted other great recipes containing ham, bacon, cheese or other vegetables, but this is the basic recipe that never fails me. This makes a large pot of soup, so I usually half the recipe.

Homemade Potato Soup

- 10 cups of raw potatoes, peeled and sliced thinly
- 2 onions, chopped fine
- ½ cup celery
- 4 cups of water
- 4 tsp salt
- 6 tbsp butter
- 5 cups of milk

Put potatoes into a heavy saucepan. Add onions, celery, water and salt. Cook over medium heat until vegetables are tender. Do not drain. Mash with a potato masher. Stir in butter and milk and heat until hot.

Refurbishment Of Espanola Pickleball Courts Best Cost Option

Espanola council had to decide whether to stay with leasing the existing site at the golf course or choose to build a new pickleball court on municipal property.

A service agreement is already in place between the town and the golf club.

The project carries a cost of $140,000 in municipal funding in addition to a $70,000 donation for the retrofits to the existing shared tennis and pickleball courts at the golf course.

Staff looked at various options including Sherwood Park and adjacent to the hospital on Queensway Avenue, but costs were higher ranging from $292,000 to $325,000 for a new build.

Public Works Director Joel Yusko says the town can cancel the agreement with written notice, so it can be reviewed whenever council wishes to do so.

With that information in hand, the council decided to go with the golf course as the least expensive option.

Espanola Knights Of Columbus Disbanding

The Espanola Knights of Columbus 3422 is disbanding. Past Grand Knight Denis Bois says the Catholic men's organization 's dwindling membership and the effects of the pandemic led to the decision earlier this month.

As a last gesture of support to the community, he and two other members presented three cheques last Wednesday.

The first cheque for $20,000 was presented to École catholique La Renaissance and Sacred Heart to go towards the purchase of playground equipment for their common play space.

He says the second cheque to the Espanola Regional Hospital Foundation of $14,900 is for the new x-ray suite and palliative care, adding the organization is proud to recognize that donation as the official kick-off of the annual Moose 99.3 Radiothon set for December 3rd.

Bois adds the hall and equipment is up for sale with the process expected to take a few months. For a history of the long-time organization in Espanola, visit our website.

Work Continues On Little Current Swing Bridge

Northeastern Manitoulin & the Islands Mayor Al McNevin says he has finally received official word on the work being done on the Swing Bridge in Little Current.

The mayor says he received correspondence from the Ministry of Transportation's northeast director Herb Villneff stating the current maintenance work being conducted on the approaches to the bridge is nearing completion.

McNevin adds, however, following the completion of that work, overnight maintenance to the bridge deck will commence. He says it is anticipated that the deck work will last about a month, weather permitting, adding the bridge will be closed to traffic for 15 minutes on the hour, between the hours of 8 pm and 5 am, Monday to Friday. McNevin adds he has been assured that a 15-minute timetable will be adhered to and signage will be placed in both directions to notify motorists.

Espanola Splash Pad Project Goes Out To Bid

PHOTO: A splash pad similar to this one in Gore Bay will be built at Sherwood Park in Espanola. The project will go out to bid in January with a grand opening planned for June 2022. Photo by Rosalind Russell Espanola council has decided to put the building of a new splash pad out to bid.

The cost of the project is estimated at $368,540 plus annual operating costs of $34,600.

The initial design plan would include a pad nearly 2,500 square feet in size with three play zones for toddlers, families, and pre-teens.

Councillor Sandra Hayden, who sits on the committee with community members, says she is pleased the council has given the go-ahead on the project.

Having worked with the various parties to put together this project, she also praised the work done by town staff to finalize the project adding the new splash pad will benefit everyone.

The project will now go through the bidding process and construction is slated to take place in the Spring with a grand opening tentatively set for June.
